Bluegrass festival a real crowd pleaser

By JOHN JANSEN
Staff Reporter

In a little-known park, not far from town, something special happened this weekend. A group of people got together to play and listen to music. There was a stage where the performers played, and a hill where the spectators sat, listening. It was a makeshift stage, nothing fancy. The hill was rough, mostly dirt and

'We're here 'cause
we like to play'

stones. Fans used lawn chairs or blankets to sit on. Some just found a big rock.

It's all happened before, in other places, at other times. But this was different somehow. It was bluegrass, and it was in Haliburton.

Saturday night in Glebe Centennial Park was a party. Band after band took the stage and sang bluegrass. The crowd loved it. People danced, clapped their hands and stomped their feet. Some, overcome by the effects of bluegrass, a clear night, and a few beers, sang, or yelled "Yahoo". All those bluegrass lovers - there must have been close to a thousand of them - couldn't think of a better place to be that night. Even after 10 o'clock, with only two bands to go, the buses from the pick up points were still coming in.

But what was so special about Haliburton's first bluegrass festival was what happened after the bands left the stage. Many of the people went back to their campsites in the park, where they had a trailer, or a tent, and kept on enjoying bluegrass. Little pockets of people gathered around campfires with their own instruments to play and sing some more bluegrass. The performers were back at their own sites with other musicians and spectators playing until all hours of the night. Anyone with a guitar, or a fiddle, or a banjo, was good enough to play with the professionals. The mood was bluegrass, and the more of it the better.

All seven bands at the festival said it was an overwhelming success for a first year effort. Some musicians said it looked more like a third year show than a first. Others mentioned festivals in their sixth year that were like Haliburton's first effort. Fiddle player Paul Menard, who was playing with McDonald Bluegrass, from Callander, Ontario, has been in the business for more than 36 years. He called the festival's success "A shock to a lot of us."

"A first bluegrass festival is never, never successful," Menard said. "This is nice. A variety of talent. Next year they'll come out on top here," he predicted.

Menard should know what he's talking about. He has played on 18 bluegrass albums, four of them hit records. He's worked out of Nashville as a fiddle player, and he ran his own studio in Montreal where he produced about 1,000 albums. He still gets more calls than he can handle back in his home town of North Bay

Brenda Johnstone and Gary Chase enjoy the music at Haliburton's first bluegrass festival on Saturday afternoon. The weekend show peaked that night when about 1,000 people came into Glebe Centennial Park. All seven bands that played said the festival was a success for a first-year gathering.

Dysart adopts anti-noise by-law

Residents of Dysart et al whose right to peace and quiet is shattered by screaming 'ghetto blasters' and other forms of inconsiderate noise making will at last have some recourse to the law. At a meeting Monday, council passed an anti noise by-law identical to one passed in 1984 by the Village of Grand Bend which has stood up to a court test.

Previous anti-noise by-laws requiring electronic readings of noise on a decibel meter have proved difficult to enforce, and many municipalities have avoided passing them, even though the need to protect the right to quiet has been almost universally recognized. The by-law passed by Dysart, however, requires no objective evidence of sound levels. It states, rather, that "No person shall, either by shouting, voice or by mechanical or other means, make a noise within the municipality calculated or likely to disturb the inhabitants of the municipality, having regard to the time, place and the intensity and frequency of the said noise."

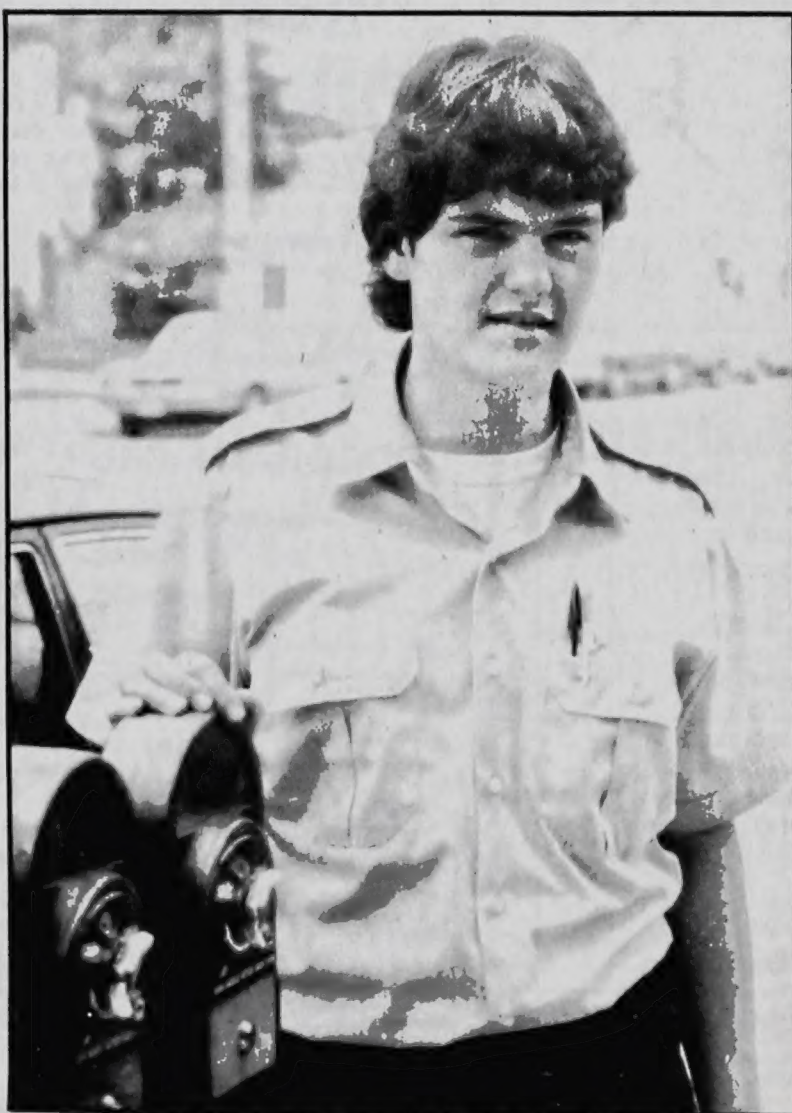

The by-law also places the responsibility for noise on the person in charge of the location from which it is emitted, whether or not they are the owners of the property. Paragraph two states that "Any person being an occupant, owner or being in possession of a room, building, cabin or enclosed space, yard or lands appurtenant to a cabin, residence, building or motel from which a noise prohibited in paragraph one is emitted, shall be deemed a violator of the said paragraph one whether or not he or she personally made or created the said noise, unless he or she proves affirmatively that the maker of the said noise was a trespasser on the said premises.

Anyone found guilty under the by-law will face a fine of not less than $100 and not more than $2000, exclusive of costs.

With the by-law in place,

Dysart residents can now phone noise complaints to the OPP during off hours, and to the municipality during normal business hours.

Miriam Smith has had a lot of insults come her way since becoming the local parking meter attendant, but so far she's been able to hold her tongue in rebuttal.

Daycare subsidy rejected

By LEN PIZZET
Editor

Local taxes will not be used to subsidize daycare in Dysart et al - at least for the moment. On Monday, council rejected a request to participate in a private home daycare program administered by the County of Haliburton Agency for Child Enrichment, at least until more statistical information about costs and needs is made available.

The request for subsidy came from Faith Stephenson, co-ordinator of the CHACE home daycare program. Stephenson said CHACE has received a mandate from the provincial Ministry of Community and Social Services to administer private home daycare facilities in the county. Under the scheme, CHACE will supervise the setting up of daycare programs in private homes where the need is identified, and provide training and assistance for 'care providers'. Provincial taxes are being used to fund the first phase of the CHACE program, but by next year it must become self-sufficient.

Stephenson said parents who put a child in a private home day care facility administered by CHACE will be charged $14 a day, of which $11 goes to the 'care provider' and $3 goes to CHACE for administration costs. Weekly rates would be $65. A second child from the same family would cost parents $12 a day, of which $2 would go to CHACE. A third child would cost $10 a day, and all of that would go to the facility operator.

In asking council to help subsidize the program, Stephenson estimated that as many as 35 percent of the people who would

Meter maid hears it all:

Excuses, verbal abuse in a day's work for Miriam

By MARTHA PERKINS
Staff Reporter

As Miriam Smith will tell you, "A lot of people don't like getting parking tickets." In fact, some people get pretty darned abusive about it.

Most of us can go about our jobs with little fear of others, besides the boss, yelling at us about the work we do. We are paid to do a job and we do it as best we can. If people don't like it, they usually keep their opinions to themselves and go on with their own business.

Not if you are a meter maid, or in more fancy terms, the municipal by-law enforcement officer assistant. In the few weeks since Smith began the summer job, disgruntled drivers have hurled all sorts of names and insults in her direction, even though she was just doing her job—giving out parking tickets if there has been a violation.

"Oh, I was just slipping into this store for a few seconds..." "I'm sorry but the doctor kept me longer than I expected..." "I put my money in but the time just ran out..." "I'm here now so can't you forget about the ticket?"

Smith has heard almost every story in the book, and then some. "They're all funny because I know they're not telling the truth," she says of some of the excuses people come up with for not putting the sufficient number of dimes and nickels into the meters. Sometimes when she is strolling down the street she will see people walk away from the meters without paying any attention to them. If they come back to find Smith ticketing their car, they insist they just didn't put in enough money.

Most errant parkers accept their ticket with good grace, politely asking where they should pay their $2. But others who are caught will take out their anger at the person whom they see is the cause of their problems—Miriam Smith.

"I think they're just mad at themselves for not putting enough money in the meter and they're taking it out on me," the 19-year-old says philosophically. "They just want to blame someone else for their mistakes."

As the butt of a lot of rude and nasty comments, Smith has learned not to take them all personally and just to go on with her job. One man got really angry, saying he wouldn't want to meet her in a ditch, but fortunately, people like him are the exception rather than the rule. Whether they use rudeness or meanness to fight getting a ticket, she has learned to stay quiet and leave them to vent their frustrations on someone else. Or their car.

"I tell them I'm just doing my job and they have to face getting a ticket since they didn't put money in the meter," she says, admitting that she is not the most popular person on the streets. "Tourists don't like getting tickets when they're on holidays and it's hard on the locals because they're here all year."

But some people's complaints are legitimate ones and Smith makes sure she treats each case fairly. If someone says their dime got stuck in the meter, then she'll go with them to check it out, and if the meter is broken, then she won't issue a

Police News

During the period of August 4 to 10, personnel at Minden Detachment investigated the following occurrences: 14 motor vehicle accidents in which 10 persons were injured and 93 general occurrences including five thefts and four break and enters.

Car stolen, wrecked

At 4:30 a.m. on Sunday August 10, someone broke into Curry Motors in Haliburton by breaking a window. Once inside they stole a 1986 Pontiac Firebird. The car was destroyed a short time later when it was rolled over on the Harburn Road about half a km north of the village.

A person was arrested at the scene of the accident and has been charged with the break, enter and theft. Shawn Anthony Wilkinson, age 20, of Kilmount is to appear in Minden Provincial Court on September 17.

Youth burned

A 15 year old Whitby boy was badly burned while working at Wentworth Marine on Lake Kashagawagomog Sunday morning at 11:30. Jeff Perog was cleaning the inside of an outboard motor with gasoline when a spark ignited the gas and engulfed the boy in flames. The owner of the marina threw a blanket around the boy and put the flames out. The victim ran to the nearby lake and stayed in the water until a car arrived and took him to Haliburton Hospital. He was treated there for burns to his neck and side, then transferred to a Toronto hospital by air ambulance.

Accidents investigated

Shortly after noon on Saturday on the Dysart Glamorgan Township road, George Zivic, age 17, of Thornhill lost control of his '83 Volkswagen on the crest of a hill. The car skidded sideways into a ditch and rolled over several times. One of the three passengers, Laurie Wheeler, age 16, of Toronto was transferred from Haliburton Hospital to Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto with severe facial injuries. Zivic was charged with careless driving.

At 10:00 p.m. Saturday on South Kawagama Lake Road in Sherborne Township Mary Burton, age 16, of Scarborough, failed to negotiate a curve with a 1980 Plymouth. The car left the roadway and snapped off a Bell Canada pole, leaving the area without phones until Monday morning. The driver received lacerations to her foot. She was charged with driving left of centre.

At 3:30 p.m. Saturday on Highway 118 in Stanhope Township Fred Grossinger, age 38, of Willowdale, drove off the right side of the road into the ditch and bounced over several large boulders. His 1984 Audi sustained $7,000 damage. He and his wife Suzanne were transferred from Haliburton Hospital to North York General with undetermined injuries.

Safe driver award to local woman

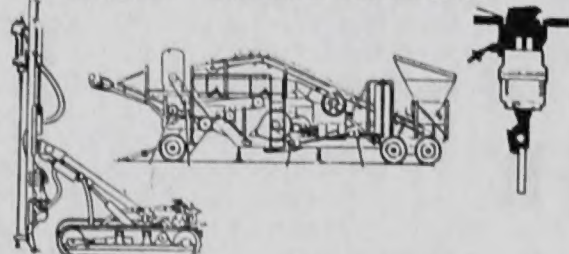

Recipient of this week's safe driving award from the Minden OPP is Anita M. Smith of Haliburton. She was observed driving on Haliburton's main street on Friday August 8, in a polite and courteous manner, stopping to allow pedestrians to cross. Cpl. Art Goad will be in contact later this week with her award.

Miskwabi cottagers choose slate

The 12th annual general meeting of the Miskwabi Area Cottagers' Association Inc. was held at 2 p.m. Sunday August 3 at the Miskwabi Airstrip clearing.

Chairman Jerry Strickland welcomed a very large crowd of area residents and introduced the association directors with a special word of thanks to 1st vice-president Terry Brandon who was retiring to devote time to business matters. The directors appointed Steve Westbrook as 1st vice-president and Jack Campbell as 2nd vice-president. Strickland referred to the considerable display of literature that had been donated by many groups and particularly emphasized the use of the Pitch-in bags by members to help keep the area clean and the booklets "Sharing our Waterways" and "Don't Rock the Boat" from the Ministry of Natural Resources.

The Financial Report was adopted and Strickland advised the group that the Association had received a $150 Community Club Award for participating in that program sponsored by Radio Station CJCL, 1430 AM.

Chairman Strickland next introduced Deputy Reeve Bill Davis. Davis spoke on a wide range of topics including a pending sign by-law, trailer problems, possible tax increases, road maintenance, North Shore of Lake Miskwabi zoning and development status, liability insurance and the complexities of having a dock installed at the municipal boat landing. The Municipality and the Miskwabi Association will continue their excellent working relationship to resolve issues.

Strickland next introduced Stan Fleming, Fisheries and Wildlife Supervisor, Ministry of Natural Resources, Minden District. Please turn to Page 18

Pyramid schemes sure way to lose

Pyramid schemes attract people who want to get rich quick but the Ontario Provincial Police Special Investigation Branch warns it is much more likely players will lose their money and could find themselves arrested, fined and even jailed.

Currently, a pyramid ring called the Pilot Investment Club, or the airplane pyramid, is operating in Ontario. Regardless of the name, all pyramid schemes are illegal.

Simple mathematics show most participants will be bilked of their money. Here's how it works: A pyramid consists of 15 people. The person at the top is called the "pilot". The next level consists of two people referred to as the "crew". The last layer involved eight people called "passengers".

To work, the eight passengers each give the pilot an amount, called an "investment", that can be as much as $5,000 each. The usual amount of the schemes now operating is $2,200.

Once he has his money, the pilot leaves and the pyramid splits into two pyramids each piloted by the original two co-pilots. Everyone else moves up one row and another eight passengers are recruited for each of the pyramids.

Theoretically, should no one drop out and all 16 new players pay their "investment" money, the original co-pilots would receive their money and would leave the scheme. The two pyramids would be split into four pyramids.

If each pyramid was to fill and be split each day, the number of new members would double daily until the end of just two weeks when there would be 262,143 people playing. At the end of the third week, 33,544,431 persons would be needed and a mere three days later 268,435,455 would be involved.

So who wins at the pyramid game? According to the Ontario Provincial Police the answer is - almost no one. And, who loses? Simple mathematics show that aside from the hustlers who set up the pyramids, and whose names are at the top, everyone else will lose.

Lake levels above average

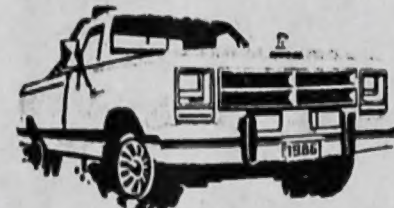

On Tuesday August 5 the Haliburton Lakes averaged 79.3 percent of normal maximum level which was a decline of only 1.3 percent since July 28. This puts 1986 summer levels about 6.5 percent above the 10 year average line, and very near a surplus situation for the time of year.

Kawartha Lakes levels were declining and, reaching into their ranges by Tuesday August 5 so a cut back of the surplus flow was made. By Thursday August 7 it became obvious that the repeated rains and drizzle plus a pending surplus in Haliburton required that the flow be increased again.

Indian urges non-violence for a better world

By MARTHA PERKINS
Staff Reporter

Change is one of the inevitable forces of nature and history. Some changes are welcomed while others are scorned and dreaded. Things can happen by force, or by the persuasion of words, though today it is far more common to further a cause by throwing a bomb than by gentle diplomacy.

For men like Arya Bhardwaj, who spent a few days in Ingoldsby last week visiting his friend

Gerry Feltham, the struggle for change must be carried out in a non-violent way. Choosing the teachings of Mahatma Gandhi as his inspiration, Bhardwaj has embarked on a path of activism that uses words and the innate goodwill of others to bring about social and political change both in his native country of India and worldwide.

"I call myself a student of non-violence," says the founder of the international peace group, Gandhi in Action. "I consider it my life mission and I cannot think of anything else than working for it."

It was in his role as member of another worldwide helping organization, Service International, that Bhardwaj met Feltham, who was on his first trip to India. Not wanting Feltham to see his country merely as a tourist would, Bhardwaj arranged for Feltham to journey to some of the smaller towns, in particular, the small village where Gandhi made his base.

Seeing India from a grass roots level and being made aware of the frightening lack of fresh drinking water, Feltham returned to his home on Keshagawigamog Lake determined to not sit idle in a country with a bountiful supply of fresh water while others did without even the barest minimum.

This was the beginning of Help a Village Effort, H.A.V.E., which raises money to dig wells through the annual Walk for Water and other fundraising events. Feltham's first trip was in 1981, and since then he has returned to India, to see how the money is being used and to learn more about his international friends. A man who is also devoted to the idea of world peace, Feltham has many thoughts to share with Bhardwaj, and invited him to visit the Haliburton area when he travelled to North America.

The main thing which impressed Bhardwaj as he drove over the American/Canadian border was the absence of the army guarding the entry.

"The idea of nations against nations is very destructive," Bhardwaj explains, and having no border army is one step towards Gandhi's dream of a world without geo-political boundaries. "Wherever there is need, there is no boundary," Feltham adds. "The world now is truly a global village and the only separation is in the mind."

All of this is part of Bhardwaj's credo that one should "think positively, act locally and live globally. This is going to be the motto of the 21st century if we want this world to be peaceful and just."

The words and teachings of Gandhi are part of Bhardwaj's way of thinking positively.

"To me, Gandhi is a person who showed the way to the world, how to overcome the problems every ordinary man is facing today," he says. Some people have chosen to try to overcome problems by entering power politics, and in India, trying to change the lifestyles of its people through the parliamentary system. But this is not for Bhardwaj who says, "The life of 330 million people is my politics."

"Of late, I've been of the opinion that the nation-state concept is now by-gone, even though the political compulsions are still there. In this jet age, where people from Canada can go to India to help a village build a well, where does politics come in?"

Politics, to Bhardwaj, is secondary to the more fundamental needs of life. "The ultimate objective of human beings should be the emancipation of the human being. This is a total concept. If man is not given freedom socially, politically and economically, how can spiritual emancipation be achieved?"

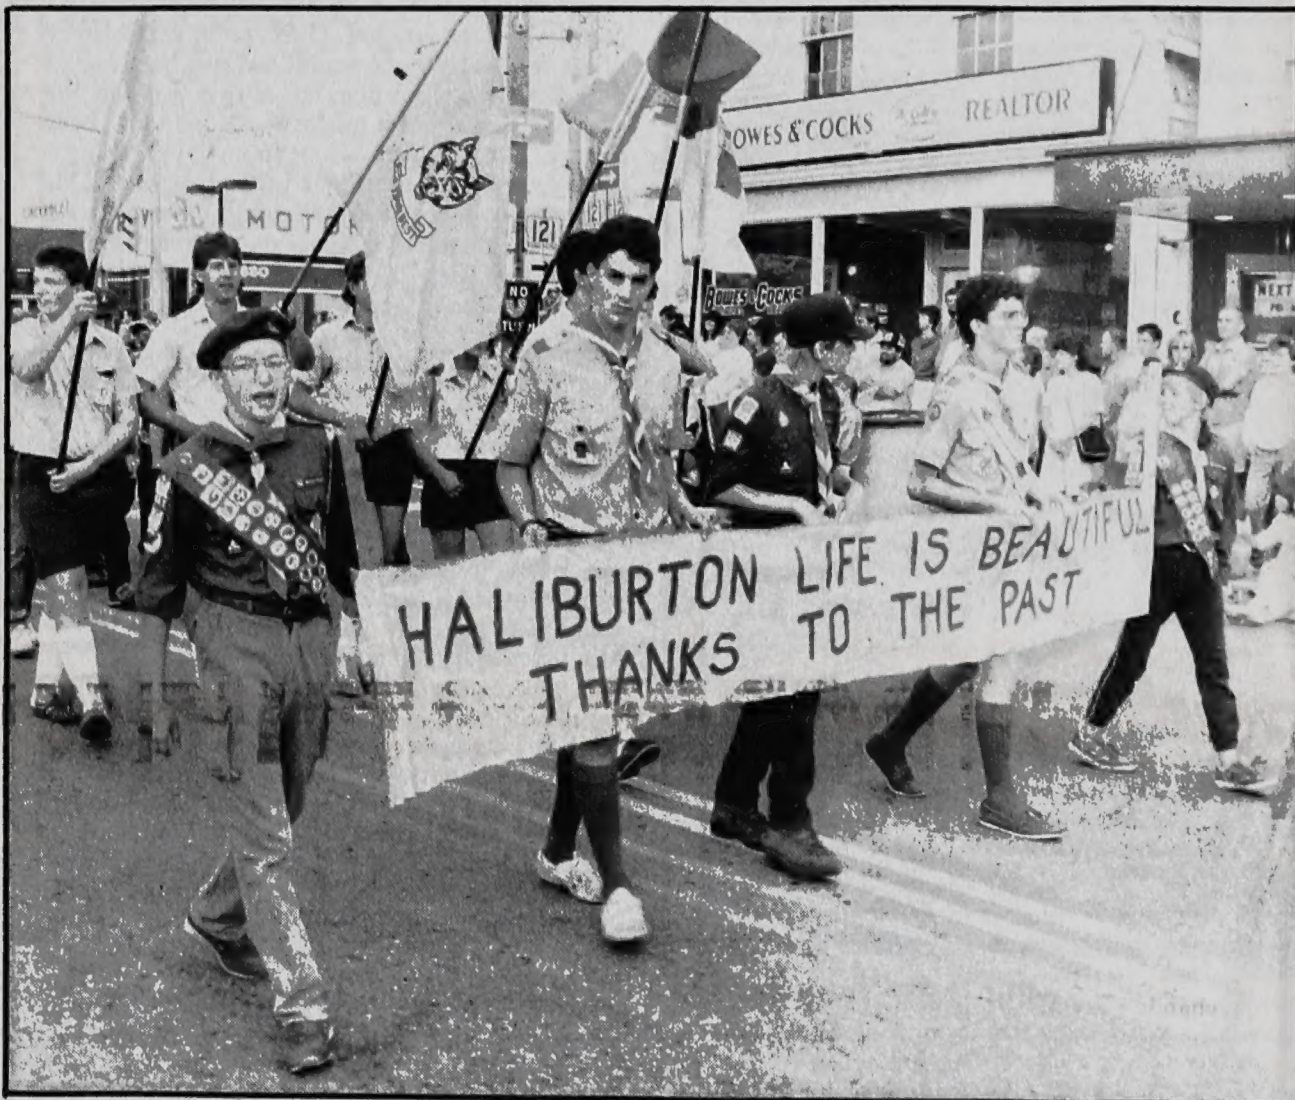

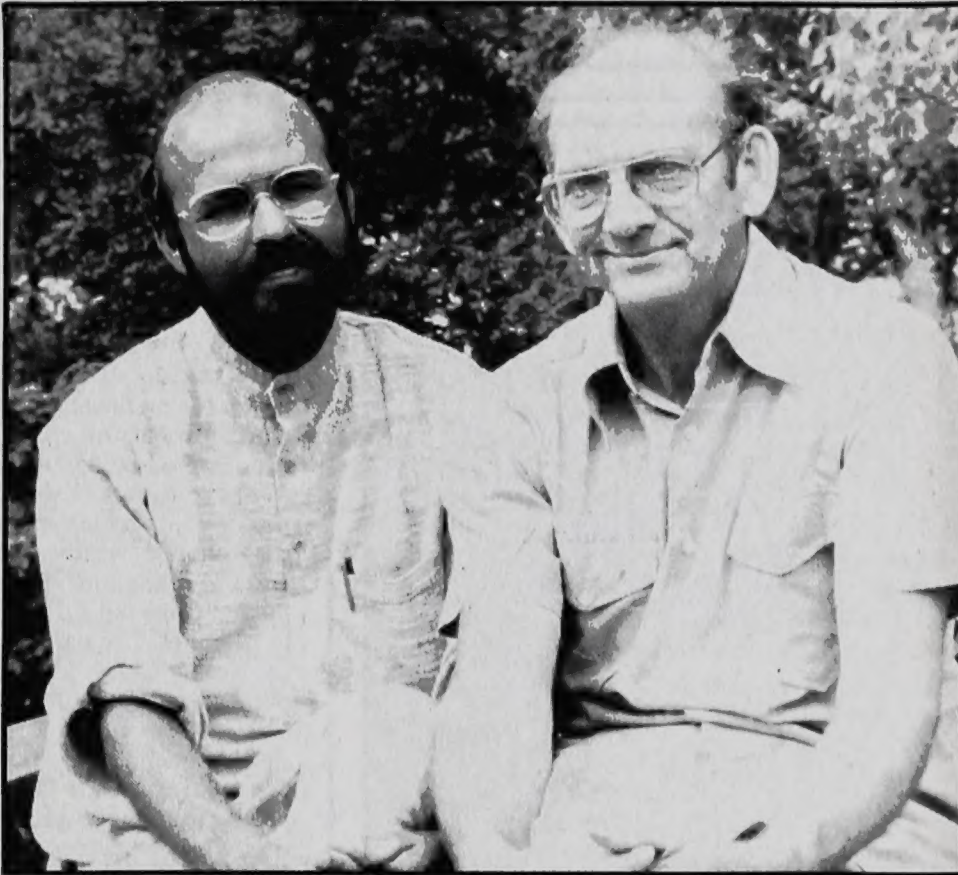

Gandhi learned his lesson about the restriction of man's freedom one day when he was travelling by train through South Africa. A lawyer who had been used to being treated with respect and open arms, Gandhi, was told he could not sit in one section of the train because he was black, and instead of being forced into another section, Gandhi quit the train and spent a cold evening thinking about the fates of man.

"The real Gandhi was born that night," as he sat there asking himself "who made this discrimination between man and man, black and white, rich and poor, high and low" says Bhardwaj. Gandhi realized this was a problem humans had created and so it was an untruth. "From that day onward, his struggle for truth was on. Gandhi became a force when he was thrown out of the train. This made a very weak man into a very strong force who could stand in front of the British regime who claimed the sun never set."

The British had attacked India, not with weapons and strongarm methods, but by stripping away the core of Indian culture and replacing it with one based on the Industrial revolution taking place in Europe. Before British rule, Indians had lived their lives in a complimentary, not competitive, manner. Everyone had a job to do and the number of people doing a job was based on the needs of the community. "While

Carnival was a winner with crowds

For more than 40 years Haliburton's annual Rotary carnival and parade have been a highlight of the summer. On that night many of the surrounding lodges and camps give their staff a night off to come into town, ride a float, and blow off steam.

Wednesday's carnival and parade, like the ones before it, were a success. An unprecedented no-rain streak continued. The parade went through town without a drop from the sky. This year's theme was, "In Haliburton, Life can be Beautiful".

After the parade, everyone headed over to the fair grounds for rides, games and food. One of the more popular games was the dunk tank where eager throwers got to take out their revenge on a few of the town's Rotarians. As usual the wheels of chance were a busy place.

Winners of the float contest were as follows: best entry, Coverall Enterprises; best theme float, Eagle Lake Store, first, Camp Wanakita, second and Illahee Northwoods Camp, third; best boy's and girl's camp float, Haliburton Scout Reserve, first, Camp Allsaw, second, Camp White Pine, third; best commercial float, Jasco Drug Mart, first, Lakeshore Boat Repair, second, Dixie Lee, third; best lodge float, Kenmar, first, Wig-a-mog, second Chateau Woodland, third.

Best special entries went to Glen Austin, first, C.J. Heard Forest Products, second, and Nordic Trails, third. The best bicycle contest was a tie between Andrew Postlethwaite and Ryan Hughes.

The winners of the horseshoe tournament were team number four of Bruce Armstrong, who replaced Ron Barr, and Scott Clement.

make use of licensed day care facilities in the community might need taxpayer assistance to meet the costs. Under the existing provincially approved formula for such assistance, the Ministry of Community and Social Services would pay 80 percent of the subsidy, while local property taxpayers would have to come up with the other 20 percent. Subsidy eligibility would be determined according to a means test like that used for welfare requests.

Councillors' reactions to Stephenson's request ranged from guarded to totally opposed.

The most outspoken critic of the scheme was reeve Murray Fearrey. "If I can do anything to stop this, I will," he told Stephenson. "Society's almost destroyed now because of all these social programs."

As well as philosophical concerns about parents handing over responsibility for care of their offspring to the state, council was unhappy with the costs of the program being set up by CHACE, and with the fact that it could take work away from people who have been caring for children in their homes for years.

"Why would we subsidize a system like yours when we have a system that's working now and costs nothing?" asked councillor

Sid Cooper.

Deputy reeve Bill Davis noted that many people in the community already are caring for the children of working parents and charging only $8 or $9 a day, none of which comes from the pockets of taxpayers.

Stephenson explained that none of these existing facilities is licensed under the Day Nurseries Act, and therefore they are not legal, although up to now there has been little enforcement of provincial regulations. The Act states, for example, that a 'provider' cannot care for more than five children, including her own, and that not more than two of them can be under two years old and not more than three can be under three years of age. Council acknowledged that in some instances people are caring for more than this number of children, but questioned Stephenson's contention that higher quality care would be provided in the CHACE administered program.

"You're suggesting that some of the private agencies are not giving quality care. How would you know that?" councillor Sid Cooper asked. In the discussion which followed, however, no direct answer was provided.

Stephenson estimated that by next spring, 11 homes would be licensed through CHACE to provide day care, a statistic that concerned reeve Fearrey, who commented "that's quite a bureaucracy that's springing up".

Fearrey said the subsidy system outlined by Stephenson would in effect mean the state would be providing free day care for the people who qualify. "It's the worst kind of socialism", he said.

Councillor Glen Hodgson said council would need more specific information about the number of people who would use the new day care facilities, the number who would be eligible for subsidy, and the overall costs before it could make an informed decision whether or not to support Stephenson's request. He suggested that county council would be the appropriate body to co-ordinate a study to come up with the necessary facts.

Fearrey said he hoped CHACE supporters realized that through the licensing program they will "put people out of business" who've been in business of caring for the children of working parents for years.

Later in the meeting, council passed a resolution stating that it "does not wish to participate in the proposed home day care program at this time".

Calling a halt

In the field of municipal politics there are times when representatives must set aside their own opinions and try to grapple with problems and challenges from a broad and flexible perspective. But there are also times - on matters of conscience and philosophy - when it is right that councillors' personal views prevail.

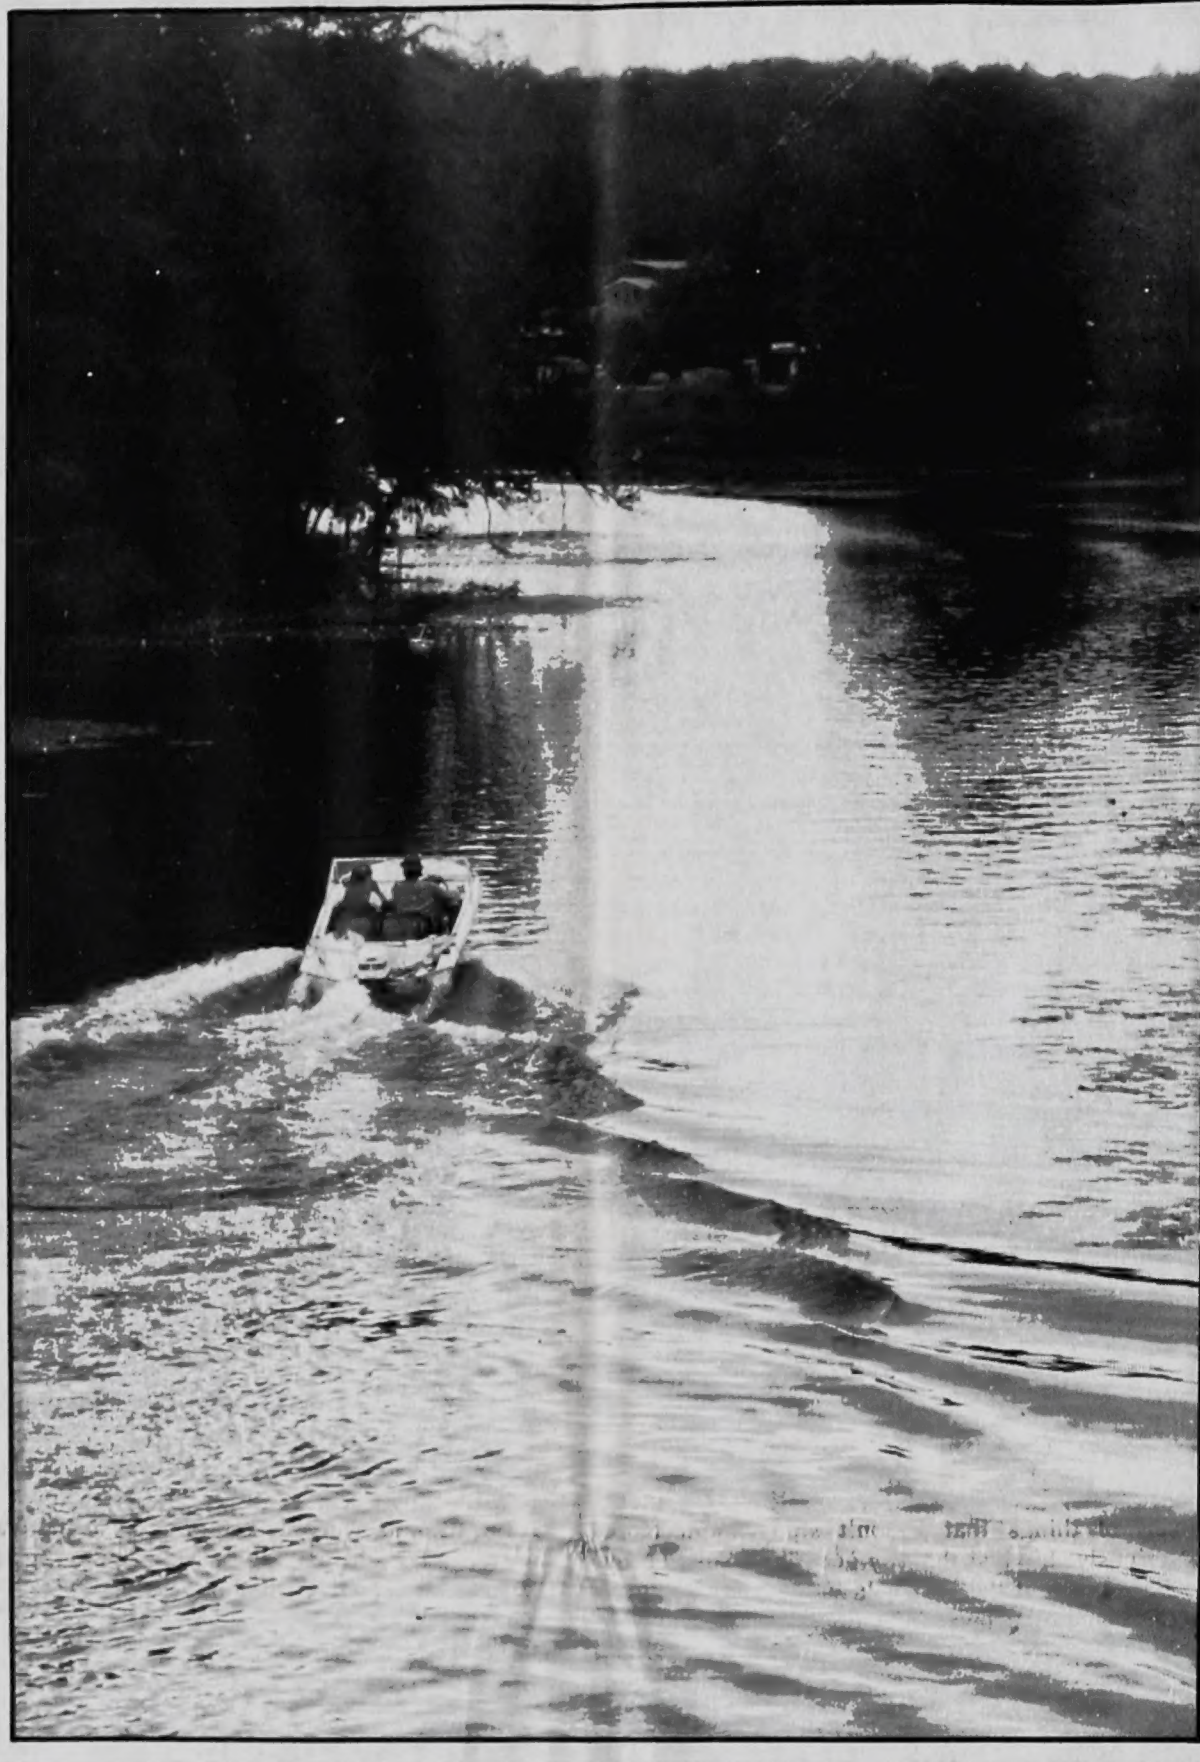

On Monday, council spent part of the afternoon listening to a request that it use local property tax revenues to help subsidize licensed day care facilities administered by the County of Haliburton Agency for Child Enrichment - CHACE. From the outset it was clear that every member of council had serious concerns about the use of local tax revenues for day care facilities. And it was also apparent that some members were philosophically opposed to yet another social program becoming entrenched in the community. In the end, council passed a resolution stating it would not participate in the CHACE program "at this time", a phrase which makes possible a change of heart in light of new and more convincing information, although that change appears highly unlikely.

Council's attitude will seem harsh to those who believe that the state has a place in the nurseries of the nation, regardless of cost, but it is likely that the majority of people will see council's apprehensions as fully justified. To understand why council's reaction to the proposal would range from serious reservations to outright condemnation, it is necessary firstly to recognize that every member of council has raised or is raising children without the benefit of tax subsidized daycare, and secondly that councillors are more aware of welfare abuses than anyone else in the community.

Proposals like that brought to council on Monday make it abundantly clear that the time has come for all of us to ask ourselves how much more responsibility for our own well-being we wish to hand over to the state. How long should we go on allowing a self-serving bureaucracy to invent costly programs whose ultimate consequence is to undermine initiative and teach a new generation that they no longer need to look after themselves? In our headlong rush to weave an ever tighter and more dense 'net' of social programs, we forget that the dollars to fund them don't come from the pockets of the civil servants who administer them, since they're paid from the tax dollars, but from the entrepreneurs and ordinary workers whose wealth and future depends on the free market. The more money we take away from those who drive the economic engine, the more likely it is that the standard of living we strive for will be unattainable.

Those who support subsidized or free daycare would argue that it is in the society's interest to ensure that children of working parents get adequate supervision and stimulation, and stated so simply, that is true. But free daycare advocates do not see the injustice in forcing everyone to pay for the few, nor do they accept the point of view that one's economic situation ought to be a determining factor in the decision to have children in the first place. One wonders, too, why countless previous generations managed to raise children and build a reasonably affluent and peaceful society with their own sweat and dollars, but the present generation perceives that challenge as an injustice to be rectified with ever more tax dollars.

In the end, council's reservations won't mean much. If the civil servants and social policy makers want everyone to look after other people's children, that's precisely what will happen.

Editor accused of fence sitting

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Your editorial "First Try" in the August 6th edition should take an award for "sit on the fence" journalism.

The people of this community expect the editor of the local newspaper to take a positive stand, either for or against an issue or project. Instead we get an editorial that implies that you will wait and see whether or not you should support the Bluegrass Festival, depending upon the outcome. I am happy to report that you may support the Festival as it was a resounding success.

As a member of Branch 129 of the Royal Canadian Legion, I take exception to your placing the credit, or the blame, for the success of the Festival squarely on the shoulders of Joan and Gerry Irish.

Although they were instrumental in planning and organizing this Festival, it was an undertaking that was shared by all Legion members. Under Joan and Gerry's leadership many Legion members put in long hours of hard work to ensure a successful Festival.

Prior to the Bluegrass Festival, Glebe Centennial Park was virtually unknown to most residents of, and visitors to, the village of Haliburton, except that it was that piece of bush across the lake next to the museum. Thanks to the efforts of the Municipality of Dysart et al, and its employees, the improvements have transformed the park into a useful place that may be used all summer long for events such as open air theatre, music concerts, church services, etc., if only some council members will open their eyes to the potential that these changes have made possible.

I am sure that the business people in Haliburton can cope with the influx of tourists and the extra revenue generated by these events, and hopefully they will be supportive and not, as you suggest, sit back and wait and see while others do the work and take the risk.

I would like to see our town become a place that tourists remember for its vitality, progressiveness and hospitality and not just as a quaint little village where they do their shopping while on vacation.

Yours truly

Petitioners wanted to fight Bell

To the Editor:

Re: my ongoing struggle with Bell Canada to obtain telephone service as outlined in the article written by staff reporter John Jansen.

In a letter from Ms. Joan Poirier, Section Manager, Bell Canada, Peterborough, she states: "Yours (referring to applications) as well as others in our serving area (Lindsay, Peterborough and Haliburton) have been on file in excess of ten years". This quote brought to my attention that there must be many others who have been without telephone service for some time. Upon the advice of a lawyer, I am sending a petition to The Secretary General, Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0N2, registering a complaint against Bell Canada for their failure to provide service in this area. The more names we secure for this petition, the more effective it will be.

I am asking that anyone among your readership who would like to join with the people of the north end of Esson Lake in this petition, should send their signatures on a slip of paper that could be attached to the petition, to me at R. R. 1, Tory Hill, Ontario K0L 2Y0.

The petition reads: We, the undersigned, hereby register a complaint against Bell Canada. We have been negotiating with Bell Canada in Peterborough for telephone service over periods of time that vary from one year to thirteen years. We are being treated unjustly and unfairly by this monopolistic organization.

An alternative would be to write to C.R.T.C. at the address given above stating your own personal complaint along with appropriate details.

Thank you for your assistance in this matter.

Yours sincerely,
C. M. Riley

Feir Play

by Creighton Feir

As has been the case on the first Wednesday of August since 1944, the annual Haliburton Rotary Club parade wended its way around town and down the main street last Wednesday evening. And as usual the crowd was as big as ever, as people who love a parade came from miles around to see the parade which featured four bands, plenty of marching units, floats and many other entries. The weather threatened rain right up before parade time and it did sprinkle a bit, but the sun came out just before the parade was ready to push off. The parade wasn't one of the best in the Rotary Club's history and it wasn't one of the poorer parades. In other words it was just average. There is also an old saying that you can't have a carnival without a midway. Well Haliburton had the midway and it literally drew in hundreds of people to play the games and ride the many rides that were on display. Many people also say that when the Haliburton Rotary parade comes down the street in August each year that the tourist season is on the downhill slope. The Rotary club hold some kind of a record when it comes to parades and the weather. Over the 40 year history of the carnival not one parade has ever been rained out. The old weatherman has always been on our side. We think that it might be a good idea if the Rotary Club would give some thought to holding a two day carnival next year instead of one. This might be an idea since the Legion have given up plans to hold their annual one day carnival. To get people back for a second night some major entertainment or attraction would have to be booked earlier on in the year.

Here, there and everywhere... Congratulations to Marjorie Rennick who celebrated her 70th birthday at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Warburton, near Haliburton. Relatives and friends dropped in during the day to greet her on her birthday... Ken Woolcott of Haliburton was the lucky winner of the 1986 Pontiac Firebird at the draw held in connection with the Haliburton Rotary Carnival which was held last Wednesday evening... The Minden Rotary bingo held on Sunday evening drew a crowd of well over 400 bingo fans. They tell me it was a great financial success... Larry Thibadeau's father died at Bobcaygeon recently.

The community of Haliburton was saddened recently when they learned of the death of Robert Bannon which occurred at the Haliburton Hospital. Bob is really going to be missed and I for one will really miss him. When I would be out on my walks Bob would like to yell out from his home and ask me how the Liberals were doing and then he would go on to tell what a great party the Progressive Conservatives were. When it came to politics we were on different sides and we had many laughs as we kidded each other along. It was very unfortunate that he didn't live long enough to see the Blue Grass Festival, an event he was helping to bring to Haliburton.

According to a news item in a recent edition of the Toronto Star some residents in the central Ontario resort of the Kawarthas are not spending the summer on the beach. They are locked in a fight with the Victoria County Board of Education over the possible closing of five public schools. The board voted in June to close schools in Kinmount, Cobocok, Kirkfield, Norland and Burnt River and replace them with two larger schools. But parents involved in the Save Our Schools lobby group discovered the board hadn't followed proper policy when it voted to close the schools. As a result, it was forced to rescind the decision last month and is now re-examining the issue. The final decision is expected October 14.

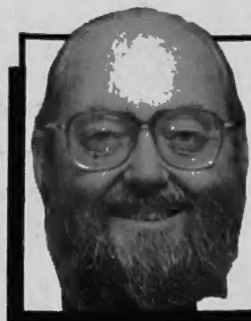

Haliburton Ambulance drivers rushed to Head Lake Park last Wednesday to pick up Bob Hunter of Gooderham who had collapsed while attending the horseshoe tournament which was being held in conjunction with the Haliburton Rotary Carnival. He was rushed by the local ambulance to the Hospital in Haliburton.

The lights came on and John Peel officially opened his brand new ice cream store on Haliburton main street last Wednesday, just in time to catch the large crowds attending the annual Rotary Carnival. John, with the help of Jimmy Way, constructed the new building and saw it through from start to finish. The building, which is located between Bernsteins store and the H & R Block office, has glass windows around it so that service can be speeded up and at least five different areas can be in service at one time.

Just the other day a visitor to Haliburton dropped into our office to inform us that he had lost his wallet and was wondering what the chances would be of getting the said wallet back. We told him that it was the old story and that if an honest person found the wallet it would be returned intact, if not the money would likely be removed and the wallet thrown away. Every summer we hear of many cases where people have lost their wallets and this year is no exception. Looking on the brighter side of things at various times during the year some people will place ads in the paper which state that they have found a wallet while others will make sure that the wallets are returned to its rightful owner. Don't give up hope as there are plenty of honest people still left in this world. The problem is that we don't always hear the news of who they are. It's not always the money that counts, it's the valuable papers that are hard to replace.

POINTS OF VIEW

Oddball news just keeps happening

The view from here

It seems hard to believe, but thirteen weeks—a quarter of a year—has gone by since we did our last review of the oddball side of the news. But things have been going on apace, and I have been keeping an eye on them, as promised.

It's still a world of unusual criminal acts. New York City? Sure. A man running 'round the world to raise money for the World Wildlife Fund gets robbed of everything he owns, while 20 unsuspecting people watch, and a TV crew films part of the event! While it's happening, a meter maid writes a parking ticket for the car parked behind him...

He may have been better off than the missionary priest, back after 19 years in Africa, who was mugged and stabbed by two transvestites on the infamous New York Subway, while reading the best-selling book, "When Bad Things Happen to Good People."

Only in New York, you say. Well, not really. One of our Mounties got out of his cruiser in Surrey, B.C., (where the RCMP fills the role of the OPP here), and while he was approaching a suspect, another man jumped into the car and drove off. It was involved in two hit-and-run accidents and a robbery before they got it back.

They caught the thief there, and they caught a bank robber in Toronto who had a real problem. He got 15 months in jail for just trying to rob a bank. He would have, but when he presented his holdup note to the teller that said "I have a gun. Give me $800.00. Don't blow it," she couldn't read his writing. He fled empty-handed.

Toronto does have its share of big-city problems, of course, and one of the solutions has been to add the 911 Emergency Line on the phone. Now you can call one number and get help with any kind of problem—medical, police, fire—you name it. Of course, the first step is to train the people who answer these calls.

One rookie operator in the early stages took a call from a woman who told him she was all alone and her water had broken. Pregnant, and ready to deliver, she was startled to open her door—not to the expected ambulance driver, but to an employee of the public works department in his rubber boots.

Toronto's homicide squad figures in one of the stranger mysteries of the year, when they found the body of a 66-year-old man in a disconnected freezer in the basement of a home, while investigating a missing person.

Police found no signs of a struggle, and after having a toxicology test for poison, came to the conclusion that the man had committed suicide by just climbing into the freezer.

Not as much fun as the Englishman who suffered a fatal heart attack after he climbed the fence in a nudist colony in the southern part of the country. They found him dead, binoculars in hand, lying on the ground. A spokesman said that if he'd waited until Saturday, he could have come to their open house for a good look around...

I don't know where they buried this guy, but one tramp in Bonn, West Germany, who may have had it tough while he lived, got a break after he died. He was buried in a millionaire's coffin, while its rightful owner lay on a mortuary slab!

The funeral directors claimed that a negligent nurse at a University Clinic gave them the unclaimed corpse of a vagrant, instead of the body they were sent for. He had a week to enjoy his top-of-the-line box in a rich man's plot before the mistake was rectified. The widow plans to sue somebody for $2,200.

And while we're looking at the oddball side of death, say a small prayer for the fellow in Glendale, California, who was trying to change real life the way you do TV. He was pointing his channel changer at passing cars and pushing the button. Police, who figured he may be on some kind of drug trip, and were concerned it was some kind of weapon, ordered him repeatedly to drop it. He didn't—and died from police bullets.

Truth is stranger than fiction, as they say, but not always this grim. Next time I'll try to find some examples of the 'lighter side' of the news.

Pic of the Past

During the past few years we have shown you many photos of the village of Haliburton with many of these pictures taken from what is known now as Skyline Park. This week's Pic of the Past was taken from a different angle giving you a much different view of the village. This photo was taken many years ago from a plane just over highway 121 coming into the village, just after you have crossed the railway tracks at the first crossing. As you can see many changes have taken place since this photo was taken. In the right hand lower corner up a few houses stands at present Shamrock Service Centre and Car Wash. On the left hand side was Cuthberts Mill later owned by Harold Bannon. And if you look very close you can see a mill standing in Head Lake Park were the band shell is now located. Photo courtesy of Garnet Sedgwick, Haliburton, Ontario.

Open door policy comes to a close

Northern Lights
Virginia
Muenzel

It's been a long time since I've opened a cupboard door in my house. A very long time...like about five years and four months. You see, up until the other day, I didn't have one...as in not any. So I'm having a little problem this week.

Ed, who, as everyone knows, rises at the crack of dawn (even on Sundays) was apparently looking for something to do the other early A.M. When the spring lull ended, and the lunacy of the tourist season began, Ed had gotten as far as cutting, sanding and staining the six doors for the new cupboards over my washer and drier. At that point, they were relegated to the cellar, from which some things have never reappeared. But he knew where they were all the time. And he found them even though there was already a couple of layers of stuff trying to camouflage them.

So, come 7:00 A.M., after being once again jolted awake by the roaring and clanging of the logging truck across the road, and once again giving up the idea of having a sleep-in, I became aware of the gentle whirring of my husband's battery operated screw-driver.

"Aha!" I thought, "Ed's being creative." So I sneaked around the corner to see what he was up to. There he was nicely lining up the last two doors. He was glad to see me too. He needed my help. I promptly reached up and showed him where to put the handles.

So what, you ask, is my problem? Well, it's not easy breaking habits. I've been reaching into opened cupboards for a long time. I'm afraid it's going to take several severe raps on the knuckles before I remember to open those doors first. No only that, but now I can't just look up and see where my things are. If I forget where I've put something, (which I am prone to do) I have to open all those doors before I find it.

Now, I'm really only kidding, because I wouldn't want Ed to get the idea that I don't like my new doors. In fact, I think they're the prettiest doors I've ever seen. He's been hiding his talents as a carpenter all these years. His work is so good that I'd hire him out except for the fact that he still has twenty-five doors, six drawers, four closets, and all that framework to do.

Madill deserving of Echo tribute

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor

Martha Perkins story on Walter Madill (Echo July 30) and his recollections of the early days of Haliburton County represents another chapter in the Echo's continuing series of interesting historical articles that will serve as valuable source material for future researchers and historians.

Perkins' article was also a well-deserved tribute to a man and his wife, Marjorie, who have gained the respect and admiration of large numbers of people, both permanent and seasonal residents, in the Gooderham area. Over the years -- as well as being a farmer and woodsman -- Walter has earned a reputation as a master builder of cottages and log homes. Twenty some years ago he built, with the help of his brother John, our cottage on Little Bear (Glamor) Lake. It is of stack-wood construction and semi-circular in shape, and it would have been a big challenge for any builder. Writing in The Canadian Architect Magazine, Toronto, architect Bill Grier-son, who designed the cottage, described Walter as one of "that rare breed of modest but intrepid farmer-woodsmen who take pride in their work and who, with high native intelligence, can achieve so much".

Walter may be a man of limited schooling but in the broader sense he is a man of great education with abilities that surpass many who have advanced university degrees. Honest, diligent, and resourceful, he is also a born story-teller with a great sense of humour, and our family has spent many a pleasant evening listening to him and Marjorie recount stories of the early days of Haliburton. Without his help many of us who came here either as permanent residents or as cottagers would have found things much more difficult. Long may he thrive.

And long may the Echo continue to give us stories that provide a record of the history and heritage of the Haliburton area.

Heritage walk enjoyed

Editors note: The following is a copy of a letter that was sent to Leo Dobrzensky by two people who went on one of the historical walks which have been held all summer in Haliburton.

Dear Mrs. Dobrzensky,

I wanted to write and tell you how much my husband and I enjoyed the Heritage Walk around the village of Haliburton on Aug 5th.

Although we have enjoyed cottage life on Lake Kashagawigamog for over 47 years, we never before had the opportunity to learn about Haliburton's past.

You and your assistants are to be commended for the work put into this project and the wealth of information given to us.

Haliburton is no longer just a resort town to us, but a village with a very interesting and special place in history and our hearts.

Canadians are breathing cleaner air

Report from Parliament

by Bill Scott MP

According to the latest Clean Air Act Annual Report, Canadians are breathing cleaner air than ten years ago. The Report shows that lead levels have decreased by 66 percent since 1976 while concentrations of sulfur dioxide and carbon monoxide are down by 31 and 54 percent respectively; the concentration of nitrogen dioxide has declined by 23 percent and total suspended particulates have decreased by 41 percent over the past decade.

On July 28 Solicitor General James Kelleher stated that most of the amendments to the Young Offenders Act passed by Parliament in June would come into force on September 1st. The

Trivial Pursuit is in a day's work

Sunny
Side Up
Martha Perkins

I now know why Trivial Pursuit was invented by a couple of journalists. It simply had to be. There is no other profession which involves the gathering of so many little bits and pieces of information that may have little relevance to your daily life.

This week I can tell you how Tory Hill got its name or how Gandhi began his struggle for international peace and freedom. In other recent weeks I've learned why Canada geese fly in a vee formation, how bees make their honey, the benefits of clipping your flowers and plants, what goes on in a Brazilian carnival, what makes Minden flood, the difference between road closings and shoreline allowances, the responsibilities of an outpost nurse, and how the heart works. The list goes on and on and on.

My brain is the warehouse of all sorts of interesting trivia that I pick up every time I go to someone's house to interview them. There is no set course of study, and unlike being a student with a strict pattern of education, my learning knows no boundaries.

Journalism is the lazy man's, or woman's way, of learning. I hate to admit it, but I tend to get a bit bored or restless with a book that doesn't involve international intrigue or a mysterious murder. When I was on my Robertson Davies kick, reading all of the Deptford trilogy, I became very interested in the theories of Freud's contemporary, Carl Jung. So off I trotted to the library, to read a non-fictionalized version of his work. I didn't make it past the first page and went back to fiction.

It's not because I'm not interested in these sort of things that I don't study them more seriously. It's just that my good intentions go by the wayside if the text gets too technical or dry. At school, you could force yourself to read you chemistry, history or economics book because you knew if you didn't, some fire-breathing teacher would be down your neck showing your classmates what a stupid person you really were. Peer pressure is very instrumental in any form of education.

But what happens when you leave school? It's like when you first leave home and no one is telling you to eat all your vegetables and get more exercise. The things that are good for you become secondary to the things that feel good. Who wouldn't eat a chocolate bar over a plate of spinach or read a good Robert Ludlum instead of 101 Interesting Facts about the Anteater That Every Modern Zoologist Should Know?

That's why I like being a reporter so much. The things people tell me are really interesting, but I'm not sure I have the patience to sit down and read about them in a book. For instance, I learn more about our past from talking to people like Walter Madill, May Croft, Mary Oliver, Garnet Sedgwick and Elmer Sawyer than I could ever find in some text written by a university professor. These people have lived through those early days and the stories they tell bring the era to life, both with their tales of struggle and their diction. I can sit and talk with them for hours about the things they have experienced but I wouldn't last five minutes in a big armchair with a history book.

So the problem isn't that I don't want to learn. Who knows when some little bit of information I pick up may come in handy, perhaps the next time I do play Trivial Pursuit. I just feel sorry for the people who have to put up with me every time I say "Did you know that..."

Chamber membership tops 350

by Shawn Hagerman

Sometime over the last month or so, membership within the Chamber of Commerce moved past the 350 mark. This is one of the true barometers of the help and strength of the Chamber within our county. The growth has been steady. Membership has been steadily growing from all sectors and geographic regions that the Chamber services. Operators, business owners and private people have all recently joined our organization.

Indicative of this new mood that has occurred within our county in the last year or so is the letter

I recently received from Bill Redgrave of the Hunter Creek Inn. He wrote to me last week to express his appreciation of the new found look that he felt the Chamber has taken on this past year. I quote "It is easy for us to criticize but I feel a word of praise is due and I think that through the fine efforts of our new manager, who has shown professionalism and leadership in promoting our great county, that we are finally on the right track."

The Chamber can be a way of promoting Haliburton as a place to visit, invest and live in. I challenge those who have joined the Chamber to invest not only their yearly dues, but if they have other talents, donate them where possible to the Chamber. By pooling our talents and resources, serving on our Board of Directors, or working with our committees, we can all make this county a better place to live.

Rotary Carnival Fun Run attracts 43 athletes and one surfboard

By MARTHA PERKINS
Staff Reporter

It wasn't exactly a race, but there was some competition between the 43 athletes who took part in this year's Rotary Carnival Fun Run.

Starting from the municipal docks on Wednesday, and sponsored by Brooks and Labatts, the local and visiting runners had the choice of going a 5 kilometre distance along Head Lake and then onto County Road 1, or pushing themselves even farther and going the entire 10 km distance. WinsurFinn's Eoin Finn and Matt Creelman took an even more unique approach and did the 5 km run carrying a surf board under their arms. They did the run in fairly good time and were given a set of towels for their ingenuity.

The overall winners of the fifth annual run were John Pickard with a time of 16.33 in the 5 km run and Danny Howat who completed the 10 km course with a time of 33.04. Both men were given a pair of Brooks shoes as an award.

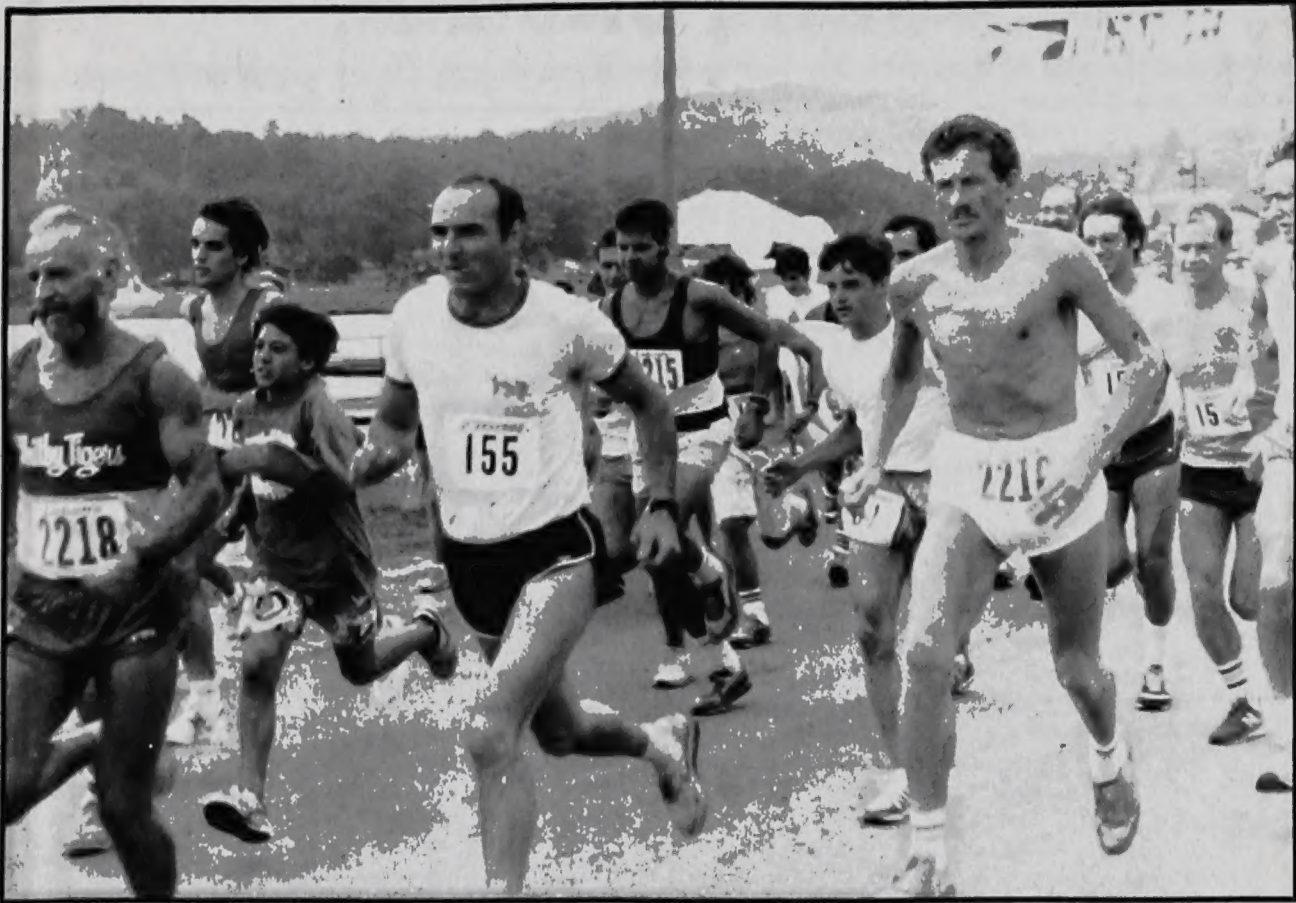

Other winners in various categories were as follows: Female, 5 km: Junior, 16 and under: Julie Waltho, 27.03; Open, over 16: Marla MacNaull, 20.08, Kim Ward, 22.43, and Pam Isles, 27.35.

Female, 10 km. There were no junior runners. Open: Anne Rogers, 52.30; Allison Brooke, 61.08. The oldest female runner was Anne Rogers.

Male, 5 km. Junior: Brad Shepherd, 16.56; Cassie Conrad, 22.33. Open: John Pickard, 16.33; Mike Hatkoski, 16.48; and Tom Wilson, 17.15.

Male, 10 km. Junior: Aaron White, 50.47; and Jamie Crackower, 57.30. Open: Danny Howat, 33.04; Jack Lord, 33.43; and Marcel Crete, 35.08. The oldest male runner was Hugh White while the youngest runners were Mathew Galbraith and Andrew Moebus.

The awards were donated by Brooks and Labatts, who also provided the start/finish banner.

One of these 43 runners, John Pickard, came in with the best time for the 5 km while Danny Howat was first 10 km runner

Fishing licence introduced for '87

Ontario will introduce a resident licence for sport fishing in 1987.

The licence will be required of most Ontario residents aged 18 to 64. Senior citizens and the disabled will be exempt, as will Status Indians fishing on their reserves or treaty areas. The annual licence will cost $10 while a short-term licence to fish for four consecutive days will cost $5.

"In public meetings held across the province, and through angler surveys, we have received strong support for this licence," said Natural Resources Minister Vince Kerrio.

"People have indicated strong approval for plans to put funding equivalent to revenues generated from this licence -- projected to be $9-to-10-million a year -- into fisheries improvement programs. This support indicates that the time is ripe to adopt the 'user-pay' principle in fisheries management."

"As a result of comments expressed in public meetings, we decided to exempt senior citizens from the licence and to incorporate the short-term licence for occasional anglers," Kerrio said.

The licence will be widely available through the Ministry of Natural Resources' network of private licence issuers, which includes sporting goods stores and tackle and bait shops. The network will be expanded as required to meet the demand for the licence, MNR district offices will also distribute the licences.

Kerrio said Ontario is among the last of the provinces to introduce a resident angling licence.

In January, Cabinet gave approval in principle to the proposed licence. Since then, the Ministry of Natural Resources has held more than 30 meetings across the province to hear public views.

Questionnaires, angler surveys and letters to the ministry indicated that most people favored a licence, providing that funding equivalent to revenues generated is used in fisheries management.

"The additional funding will be used to improve the quality of sport fishing in Ontario," Kerrio said. "It will go toward programs to protect, rehabilitate and enhance Ontario's fisheries, both in northern and southern Ontario."

"For example, we can consider such projects as fish culture stations, the construction of fish ladders to aid naturally-reproducing species, improved enforcement capability and restoring fish habitat in urban areas" to provide more fishing opportunities nearer people's homes."

Kerrio said the resident angling licence will also give ministry staff important information about how the resource is being used: "It will tell us who is fishing, where and for what. With this information, we'll be better able to gear our fisheries management programs to the needs of resource users."

A Fisheries Advisory

Council, to be made of members of the public, will advise the Minister on fisheries management priorities and fisheries-related expenditures.

Tory Hill landmark has new owners

John and Jackie Elamad take over business at Finlay's General Store

John and Jackie Elamad are the new owners of Finlay's General Store in Tory Hill. The Toronto couple and their four children took over the business at the beginning of this month and haven't looked back.

"We were dreaming to go live in the country to find peace and quiet," Jackie Elamad said. "The only way to move into the country is to own a business."

Husband John agrees. "I have no regrets," he said. "It's a wonderful community. Everyone is very friendly. You say good morning and they say 'How are you?' It's very friendly."

The Elamads made their decision to leave jobs in the city within two months of coming to Tory Hill for the first time. John Elamad worked in the engineering department of Goodyear Canada and Jackie Elamad was a payroll accountant.

"I was travelling about 80 miles a day to go to work and back," John Elamad said. "Jackie was driving about 30 miles a day."

"Sometimes we would pass each other on the street as I went to work and John was coming home," Jackie Elamad said. "We would hardly see each other."

The couple believes the move will be good for their children, Mary, 13, Stephanie, 8, Jeffrey, 8, and Jennifer, 6.

"They think we're still on vacation," Jackie

Elamad said. "They love it so much."

John Elamad likes the feeling of safety and security in Tory Hill for himself and his children. "I don't have to worry about my kids in the street," he said. "I don't have to watch my car in the street to see if I'm getting a ticket."

Elamad is grateful to the Finlays for all their help before and after selling the store. "The Finlays have been very generous and kind," he said. "We feel they have given us a break in life. They let us continue to use the Finlay name on the store and we're very honoured to have that," Elamad said.

The Elamads will keep the store open seven days a week from 8:30 in the morning until 8:30 at night. They'll have a complete variety of goods from fruit and vegetables to videos for rent. "We intend to keep the character of the store the same," they said.

The Elamads' immediate plans are to get themselves organized in the living quarters above the store. When that's done they'll have a chance to enjoy the scenery and start to feel at home. If all goes well they would like to open a snack bar beside the store.

The family is glad they made the move to Tory Hill and is looking forward to becoming a part of the community.

"We're just happy to be here," they said.

'It's a wonderful community,' says Elamad of the spirit he has found in Tory Hill

Kountry Kids clothing:

Delaine and Blake Sisson will cater to children

By MARTHA PERKINS
Staff Reporter

Ask any mother in Haliburton what she feels about trying to clothe her children, and she may throw up her arms in frustration, complaining that a difficult task is made worse because there is no store in town which caters specifically to the needs of our youngest citizens. That is until last Thursday.

As a mother of three, Delaine Sisson can empathize with anyone tired of making trips down to Peterborough or Lindsay to try to find good quality yet economical clothes for their children. So she and her husband Blake decided to take action.

Kountry Kids is located in the new complex of stores built underneath Michael's Restaurant. Inside are racks filled with Harley and Osh Kosh B'Gosh children's clothing, with plenty of bright colours and designs to choose from. The entire stock is not in yet, but considering she made some sales before the store was even "officially" opened, Sisson has used her experience of clothing her own children to the best advantage.

"Buying children's clothing isn't easy and it's difficult to say how worthwhile it's been to buy really good quality," she says, since children are rough on their clothes and grow out of them quickly at certain stages.

But one advantage of buying good clothing is that you know when you put something into the washing machine, it's going to come out looking the same, with all the buttons and seams intact and the colours just as bright. Another plus is that they will still be in good shape for the younger brothers or sisters who may come along.

Children's clothes are different than adult's since special attention must be paid to the child's capabilities and age, Sisson explains. "At 12 months old you want to look for snaps on everything and by the time they're toddlers you want clothes they can slip on and off for toilet training."

When she first went around looking at different manufacturer's lines, she kept an eye out for clothes with good stitching, design and material. Osh Kosh B'Gosh is quite expensive (approximately $30 for a pair of overalls), yet a very popular make with its sturdy cloth and bright, fashionable designs. Sisson felt very lucky to be able to find some available stock and is devoting a part of the store to display them.

The Harley brand is less expensive without scrimping on quality. The clothes are durable and well-made which is essential if they are to outlive the wear and tear of an adventuresome toddler. As the store becomes better known, Sisson will be stocking other brands as well, but at the moment, these are her two major lines.

Deciding what lines to buy and where to find them was the most difficult challenge for Sisson when she first started out. A Haliburton native, she had never driven the Toronto streets before so she enlisted the help of her friend Julie Hartin, who used to own the Village Shoppe and was very helpful in giving her advice and guidelines to go by.

The main manufacturing district in Toronto is along Spadina Avenue, where all the merchants vie for the buyer's business. After talking prices and making deals, Sisson decided that this was something she was really going to enjoy.

"I knew I just wanted to turn around and go back there and do it all over again on my own," she says. "I was really afraid I wouldn't like it, but after the first day I knew it was in my blood."

Now Sisson is totally in the business-woman spirit, asking lots of questions from friends and former business owners and making sure to accept anyone's offer of help. Her husband is just as enthused about the business as she is and in the winter months, he will be able to spend more time in the store.

One thing she has learned is to be tough on the telephone and get things done as soon as possible. Her experience as a legal secretary helps her deal with problems over the phone, but there are still some unavoidable problems such as the manufacturing district in Montreal closing down for two weeks.

Sisson had intended to open at the first of July to take advantage of the influx of shoppers in the area, but because of delays she had to postpone her opening. And until she gets people into the store, she cannot continue to buy stock to fill up the two large showrooms.

"I'm already three weeks behind and the worst thing I can do is get upset," she says. She is not that worried about missing the summer trade because "I think Haliburton will support me and I'm just going to have to be patient."

So for the time being, she is going to put her plans for a play centre on hold. It is her goal to have an area near one of the windows overlooking the park full of toys for the children to play with as their mothers shop. "I want the mothers to be able to come and enjoy themselves."

It is obvious that not only the mothers will enjoy being in Kountry Kids, for Sisson lights up when she talks to interested shoppers about their children, what problems they are experiencing finding the right clothes or even simpler things such as the child's name, age and any other tiny particulars. Kountry Kids is a place for people who simply like children -- well dressed children.

Kountry Kids owner Delaine Sisson is optimistic her lines of children's clothing will prove popular.

Guild builds area name

Guild News

By Leo Dobrzensky

"Let's put Haliburton on the map", is a popular saying in this area. How many local residents realize that the Guild of Fine Arts, in partnership with Sir Sandford Fleming College, has done just that, almost single handedly, and with more imagination than money. Today the name Haliburton is well known in the Art and Craft world on an international level. The year-round presence of the Guild and the Summer School of Fine Arts has attracted a number of people, not all of whom are artists, to the County, first to vacation and eventually to retire. To these newcomers to the area and to many older residents, the Guild is not just one of the many organizations to which one belongs, being a member is a way of life.

In order to finance the Guild's activities some fund raising is necessary. One such project is a draw for a 14-day trip for two to Portugal, including airfare and accommodations. Tickets for the draw which will take place on October 11, can be purchased at the Gallery for $5. The "Early Bird" draw for $250, held on August 1, was won by Pauline Holancin.

Mrs. Holancin, a painter, is one of some 55 teachers who instructed this year's crop of over 1,000 students who flocked to Haliburton from all over the globe. Like many of her fellow art instructors, Pauline Holancin returns to the summer school year after year and has seen the campus grow from small beginnings to the prestigious position it now holds among art schools. Under the guidance of top-notch professionals, students from all across Canada, the USA, and even far-away Australia, are given the opportunity to achieve excellence in the field of arts and crafts. This year, a marquetry course given by local resident Kevin Dunlop was a new and exciting venture for the school.

As a result of experiencing the beauty and culture of the Highlands, many teachers and students have bought property in the area and some plan to retire here. This trend has had great spin-off benefits for the local economy as a whole and since it does not show any signs of abating, will continue as long as Haliburton County remains a desirable place to live in.

Today it is difficult to remember that prior to 1967 both institutions which we take so much for granted did not exist. The story of how the "Banff of the East" came into being is well described in Nila Reynolds' book: "Dream of Excellence". Without fanfare, and mostly through plain hard work by a group of dedicated volunteers, the brainchild of Rev. Ron McCaw has finally come into its own.

Youth act is amended

changes coming into effect will:

- Empower the police to intervene quickly and make an arrest when a young offender fails to comply with the conditions of a probation order or non custodial sentence.
- Clarify that any adult or young person involving children in criminal behaviour is subject to prosecution.
- Allow for consecutive sentences totalling more than three years when a young person commits a subsequent offence while still subject to an earlier sentence.
- Provide that the youth court may allow publication of - the identity of a young person who poses a danger to the public, when public assistance would aid in his apprehension and where a peace officer makes an application; - the identity of an accused young person or of a young person or child who is a victim or witness, upon the request of the person to be identified.
- Modify the provisions of current law on the testimony of children and detention prior to sentencing.

Meter beat is sometimes nasty

If the people come back when she is writing out the ticket, she'll let it go if she's only got as far as the date, but if the licence plate number is recorded, then it's simply too late. She'll be fair but she won't be lenient.

The occasional abusive language aside, Smith has really enjoyed her summer walking up one side of the street and down the other, checking each meter for a violation and making sure there are no parked cars in areas where they should not be.

"You're outside a lot so you're getting exercise anyway and you get to meet people," says Smith of the perks of the job. She had spent three of her summers working indoors and this summer she wanted to manage to catch a little of the sunshine during the week.

The money from parking violations $1,579 of it in 1985, may not seem enough to justify sending someone into the streets, unprotected from the harsh words of others. The financial benefits to the municipality may not be grand, but the tickets do deter people from being selfish with the limited parking space available downtown. With only a hundred or so metered spots in the downtown core, it would not do for someone to hog a space all day.

"The parking is there for everyone and it's not fair if one car sits there all day," Smith says in defence of her job.

At first, however, council wasn't sure that they would want a girl for the job. The job had been in the hands of Tim Deremo, whose larger frame could be quite daunting to people tempted to get into a yelling match over a piece of yellow paper. A few weeks into the summer, he was offered a job in his chosen career and someone had to be found to replace him.

Smith's brother was approached for the job but since he already had one, Miriam's father suggested that his daughter might be suitable. Council had its doubts she could handle whatever the irate parkers may say to her and held a special meeting to discuss the possibility of hiring the first female "meter maid."

"It's probably just the pressure of all the comments people give you on the streets," that would make council think I might be best for the job, Smith says. "They said I might get some flack but not to say anything back to them."

Since she did not have the chance to talk to Deremo about his experiences, Smith can't compare how people may treat her differently, though she is optimistic people would speak less harshly to a woman than they would a man. Yet on the other hand, she wouldn't want them to think she would be less firm if they appeal to her gentler nature.

"You have to know how to handle people," she says. "You can't really say what you want because they are tourists and you want them to come back again."

Even though it may seem like a fairly routine job, wandering the streets, rain or shine, and placing tickets under windshield wipers, Smith reminds anyone tempted to follow in her footsteps that being a "municipal by-law enforcement officer assistant" is not as unadventurous as some may think.

"I like the challenge," she says. "I've learned to be patient with a lot of people, you have to be. There's millions of different people out there."

And it's patience any future "meter-maid" must have in abundance, Smith says, for it has saved her from a lot of arguments with people who have little themselves. The trick to the trade is "not talking back to a lot of people I'd really like to."

One could say it's been an interesting year for Haliburton's pioneer female meter attendant, who has braved rain and hail, unkind words and gestures, blisters and tired feet, all for the good of downtown drivers in Haliburton.

So next time you see that familiar slip of yellow paper asking for a measly $2 or $5 for your misuse of municipal property, remember that the young woman who put it there is just doing her job. And isn't it nice to know that taxpayers' dollars are going to someone who simply does what she is paid to do?

The streets of Haliburton were lined with people waiting with anticipation from the Rotary parade last Wednesday night. With the local camps, businesses and resorts taking advantage of the opportunity to let loose, these people were not disappointed.

Respected doctor honored by highschool bursary

By KELLY GRAHAM
Norland Correspondent

Dr. Robert Jamieson is a credit to the medical profession. For 40 years he has practised out of Cobocok, serving the community and earning friendship and respect throughout the vicinity. Now the time has come for friends and patients alike to honour him and pay tribute to the man who has contributed so much to the area he served.

In view of his retirement a fund is presently being set up from local donations. Each year the interest from this fund will be used to provide a Bursary at Fenelon Falls Secondary School. The Bursary will be presented annually to a graduating student who attended one of the six northern schools (Norland, Cobocok, Kirkfield, St. John's, Burnt River, Kinmount) and plans to pursue science, nursing, or medicine at a post-secondary institute.

The idea was generated from a meeting held in Cobocok on July 30. The meeting's purpose was to plan and organize a retirement gift for Dr. Jamieson. The aforementioned idea was agreed upon by those in attendance and donations are presently being accepted at the Cobocok, Fenelon and Lindsay branches of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and at the township offices of the northern communities. Community chairmen have also been selected to organize and oversee canvassing in their area. These people are Bev Graham (Norland, 454-3707), Mary Lunan (Kirkfield, 438-3164), Ferne Scarlett (Kinmount 488-2535), Gladys Watson (Burnt River 454-3976), and Gwen Rutter and Annie Robertson (Cobocok 454-3968). If you wish to make a donation, please call on one of these ladies.

With any luck the money will be put to use immediately. In fact, Larry Skitch, former vice-principal at F.F.S.S. has suggested using part of the principal this year so that the bursary may be presented at the November commencement exercises.

It is hoped an ambitious and deserving student will be chosen so that he can follow behind Dr. Jamieson fulfilling his precedent of dedication and excellence.

Bluegrass festival grows on Haliburton where he has a violin restoration and repair shop.

"You had a beautiful, beautiful turn-out," he said late Sunday afternoon just before his last performance. "We didn't expect that at all."

Menard tried to explain why bluegrass musicians like the festivals so much, and why he thinks Haliburton has the makings of a successful annual event.

"We're here playing 'cause we like to play," he said. "It's an outing. It's a lifestyle. This is our fun."

"Next year it would be nice if all the musicians could be together. At other festivals we're all together. Everyone can come to listen and play. If they want to go to their camp they can go to bed."

But Menard didn't expect perfection when he came to play in Haliburton. What he expected was a lot less organization and a less suitable site. One suggestion he made, which the legion is already considering for next year, is how to have all the musicians billeted near the stage.

Group members of the Boys From Indiana were also impressed with the site and the organization. The seven-man group made a mad dash in their tour bus from West Virginia to get to the festival just in time for their first set at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The headline band appeared three more times to close the Saturday show, close the gospel service, and then again on Sunday to finish off the whole festival.

"You've got a good thing going here," one of the members said. "It's a good site. We're really enjoying ourselves."

Master of ceremonies Bob Wood, who has travelled the bluegrass circuit for many years and had a bluegrass radio show on CHOO, Ajax for seven and a half years said the weekend has the earmarks of an excellent festival. I'm impressed with this."

More encouragement came from sound man Tony DeBoer who spent much of the weekend in his sawed-off van-trailer adjusting dials to keep the sound right on key. DeBoer was pleased with the festival from the beginning and said early Saturday, "Everything is going well."

All that positive feedback from people who have seen the successes and failures of bluegrass convinced organizers Joan Irish, president of the Haliburton Legion, and her husband Gerry, bluegrass co-ordinator, that the festival was successful for a first time show.

By Sunday afternoon Joan Irish was dancing and clapping to one of the last bands of the weekend. Husband Gerry enjoying a chance to be at her side for one of the few times during the weekend, also looked pleased. Asked if he would take up banjo playing and make an appearance at next year's talent show he replied, "no", and gave a big laugh.

"There's no doubt we'll do it again next year," Joan Irish said. "I was a little disappointed on Saturday morning that we didn't have

Wilberforce celebrates rural roots

Wilberforce went to the dogs this weekend. And to the ducks, frogs, goats, rabbits and horses. It was a time when the farming heritage of this small community got its place in the sun for the third annual Agricultural Fair.

If you disregarded the modern clothes and advanced audio system announcing the various events of the day, one could imagine you were back in the days when a horse and sweat were used to do the harvesting and a family took pride in their livestock and produce. People were far more self-sufficient in those days, making most of what they needed from scratch and passing on their skills from generation to generation. The old-time agricultural fairs gave the men a chance to show off their strongest plowing horses and the women a showcase to prove that their families were the best-fed in the district.

But all has not been forgotten and there is still the local tradition of competing to see who can grow the best looking tomatoes, bake the most mouth-watering pie, breed the finest goat or train the most handsome horse. And in the age of midways and bright lights, the crowds attending the events at the fairgrounds took great delight in cheering on their favourites in the duck race and frog leaping contests. It may have been old-fashioned fun, but it was certainly a match for any modern amusement.

Presiding over the fair was Beauty Queen Charlene Stoughton, who was on hand to give out the awards, with Karen Chatterton of Harcourt and Alma Hannon of Wilberforce as her attendants.

Nearly everyone with a dog seemed to show up at the dog contest, a popular favourite, but there were also a lot of goats and rabbits vying against each other in the different contests. The baseball diamond was converted into a parade ring as the horsemen and women trotted about, showing their skills.

Indoors, the exhibit hall was filled with all kinds of local handicrafts with local gardeners, sewers, knitters and quilters all presenting their best work for the public to see. The children of the area were also well represented by their display. Even though the displays were "admire but don't touch", there were vendors on hand to tempt you at the flea market.

Entertainment was provided throughout the day by the Rhythm Cloggers of Ontario and the band Just Plain Country.

This year's Agricultural Fair attracted a record number of people and speaks well for the organizers who provided visitors with a bevy of activities and displays to keep them interested and coming back next year.

more people on Friday night but everyone has told me that the festival is a success for a first try.

"Last night (Saturday) made me feel a lot better," she said. "They tell me that the Haliburton Bluegrass Festival is two years ahead of itself. It's like other festivals that are in their third year."

Virtually all the bands want to return to Haliburton next year for another festival, the Irishes said. "That's positive," they said.

Gerry Irish, who has lived and breathed bluegrass for too long to remember, said a lot of the credit for the smooth organization has to go to the 140 volunteers who helped pull it off.

"We never could have done it without the help of all those people," he said. "Everyone from the people at the parking lots to the security and St. John's Ambulance deserve a very big thank you. They made my job so much easier."

The Irishes didn't know how many people finally did come to the festival. "There must have been at least 1,500 on Friday night and Saturday," Gerry Irish said. "We're going to figure all that out after the weekend."

Some highlights of the festival were the Cindy Thompson Show and the amateur contest. Cindy Thompson, a trick fiddle player, delighted the crowd with her music. She was joined by her sister Wendy, and backed up by McDonald Bluegrass, for a step dance demonstration. The sisters danced up a veritable storm until they had to stop from sheer exhaustion at the end of their appearance.

The Thompson sisters were followed by the amateur contest. Fifteen daring contestants took to the stage to play for fun and prizes. The players were judged by a panel of musicians from the bands. First prize of $100 went to Rob Thompson of Toronto. Second prize was taken by John Foreman of Bancroft who got $50, and third prize of $25 was won by Rob Wood of Oshawa.

Sunday morning's early risers were treated to a musical gospel service featuring three bands. McDonald Bluegrass, Family Pride, from Ohio, and the popular Boys From Indiana were on stage to sing gospel songs for the crowd.

Rev. Bob Guiliano, the Padre of the Haliburton Legion, read a meditation to the people, praising the efforts of the Legion's volunteers.

"I want you to know that I am strangely proud to be the Padre of the Haliburton Legion," he began. "These people of the Legion work hard and have courage for grand visions." Many of them are retired. They don't have to be busting their tails the way they do, but they are devoted to a larger vision, even, than this bluegrass festival. They have a longing for peace in this world and for stronger, healthier communities. They don't rest, lest they forget their promise of peace."

Now that it's all over, the first Haliburton Bluegrass Festival is a gamble that paid off. Even though the Legion didn't make money on the event they're calling it a success because that's what everyone else is calling it. Tourism Minister John Eakins, who was at the official opening Friday night with M.P. Bill Scott, Chamber of Commerce Manager Shirley Rapson, and Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey, told the Irishes his ministry will help promote next year's festival through its publications and news releases.

Fearrey said after the weekend that it was a success. "The town has something to be proud of," he said. "It's definitely going to work in following years. This time they've got a whole year to organize it."

Bluegrass will undoubtedly return to Haliburton next year, that's the verdict of everyone who was there. It was one of those things that makes a town feel good about itself because it can have an idea and make it work. Haliburton's long list of attractions now has another feature: the Haliburton Bluegrass Festival.

the farmer was out growing the food for everyone, the blacksmith was mending his plow."

Everyone was secure in their livelihood since "this was a community life where you feel concerned for others, so not only was it an economical exchange, it was also a social system."

This system was shaken to its depths when the British arrived, gradually eroding the "social fabric and instilling new ways of doing things that were best adapted to a more industrialized country. Indians made their clothes with material imported from Manchester, England, not from the village weaver who used to supply the village with all its needs. The English norm of competition became a way of life in India.

Gandhi wanted to rebuild the old system, Bhardwaj says, so that half a million villages would become a small republic, much the way it used to be. And this is where there was a clash with those in power.

"The political system he wanted to build was frustrated by those who merely wanted a parliamentary system of democracy," Bhardwaj says. "After the war for independence was won in 1947, Gandhi had this plan for bringing or taking back the country to the old system."

It was at this time that a rift developed between Gandhi and his supporters. "The ordinary man is not prepared to have a basic change in his lifestyle. People try to follow the beaten path. Man is weak."

But men such as Bhardwaj want the change to come; they want it to become a different kind of strong force that will compel others to follow.

He likens it to how man adapts to his climate. If it gets cold, no one has to tell you to put on a sweater, just as no one has to tell you to take it off when it gets warm. Man reacts to the climate and as Bhardwaj sees himself, "I am a very humble catalytic force trying to build the environment" for social change. And he has chosen to do this in a non-violent way.

"Instead of giving weapons, you give a voice to the ordinary man," he believes. "You give a voice to those who are voiceless."

Another of his guidelines is that instead of bringing about change by using negative forces, such as demonstrations or protest marches, you must use positive tools, such as H.A.V.E.'s efforts to build wells. It is in ways like this that all men are brought together, no matter where they live and who they were born.

While Bhardwaj was in Ingoldsbay, he talked to the H.A.V.E. committee and the local Baha'i members.

Former residents recalled

Gooderham news by Mary Hadley

Two pioneer residents of Gooderham died last week. Mrs. Etta Gill died in the Lindsay Hospital on August 4 in her 97th year. She was the wife of the late Rufus Raby and of the late Ed Gill.

A few years ago she moved to Lindsay where she lived until she became a resident at the Nursing Home in Cannington.

Her many friends here recall her as a respected citizen who gave freely of her time and talents to serve others.

Surviving are her ten children, Vern, Edna, Mitchell, Arthur, Florence, Neville, Elaine, Ona, Audrey and Betty. One son, Robert Raby, predeceased her.

She also leaves 45 grandchildren, 74 great grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren.

The funeral service was held at the Mackey Funeral Home, Lindsay. Interment took place in the Glamorgan Cemetery. We extend sympathy to the family members.

Our community was shocked and saddened last Wednesday when it became known that Robert Hunter, a lifelong resident had died at the age of 70 years. He collapsed while participating in something he enjoyed - pitching horseshoes with Ron Barr at the Rotary Tournament in Haliburton. All attempts to revive him were futile. A few days previously he competed in the horseshoe tournament at Gooderham where he won second prize and a trophy.

A few years ago he underwent serious heart surgery but seemed to have recovered sufficiently to enjoy a much fuller life. An outdoorsman, he was fond of fishing, hunting and trapping.

He had a green thumb as proven by his flower garden of which he was very proud. His prize-winning roses, dahlias, gladioli and other varieties were beautiful and are a living memorial to his love of beauty.

He was predeceased by his wife, Nancy Woodlands, and three brothers: Charlie, Ronald and Aldridge. Surviving are: his daughter, Marily, his son, Monty; three grandchildren, one brother, John and two sisters - Rita and Rosaline.

He rested at the Barr Funeral Home. Services were held in the Petecostal Church on Saturday afternoon, with Rev. Roger Sauve bringing words of comfort to the bereaved. As requested by the family, he sang: "How Great Thou Art". A good friend and horseshoe partner, Ron Barr, gave the eulogy.

Interment took place in the Glamorgan Cemetery. Pall Bearers were: Paul Hunter, Dennis Hunter, Eddie Hunter, Danny Travis, Frank Travis and Johnny Travis.

Sympathy goes out to the bereaved.

The bridge games have been continuing in the Tory Hill Recreation Centre. There were five tables last Tuesday evening.

Bruce Armstrong of Haliburton had the highest score. Ardie DeCory of Essonville came second.

June Tounsignant of Hamilton is visiting her sister, Margaret Pickens and Dallyn.

Mrs. Ida Forrester has returned to her home in Willowdale after visiting her friend, Clara Newsstead. Leona and John Mackie have returned to St. Catharines after a visit with Leona's mother, Mrs. Mae Pickens and other family members.

Grace Billings enjoyed a bus trip to Moosonee recently.

Maurice Bradley will be in charge of a memorial service at the Glamorgan Cemetery on Sunday August 24 at 2 p.m. In case of rain the service will be held in the United Church.

An excellent crowd turned out last Sunday afternoon at the Community Centre when about 25 members of the "Revelation Riders" - Peterborough chapter of the International Christian Bikers' Association, visited Gooderham.

The Pentecostal Church, who had been planning this since February, were sponsors.

In their demonstration they rode some of North America's fastest production bikes including the Honda Gold Wing Cavalade, Suzuki, Triumph and Harley. Their field day demonstrated such events as: obstacle courses, drag races, a slow race and stunt riding. Local boys, riding as passengers joined in such competitions as trying to bite a suspended mustard-dipped weiner as the bike passed below or attempting to hit a potato with a hammer while speeding by. This created much amusement!

In the evening the Gospel Express - the Music Department of the Riders provided excellent vocal and instrumental music, interspersed by their testimonies as a Christian group.

The ladies of the Recreation Committee operated a food booth which was appreciated by the organizers. Other enjoyed a picnic lunch.

Teen dance at local recreation centre this Friday night

Norland news by Kelly Graham

What a summer this has been. I've become some used to thunderstorm warnings flashing across my television set that I barely even pay attention to them anymore. Let's hope that Mother Nature decides to wind up the summer in a 'sunny' way. One more befitting the season.

The bad weather, however, didn't discourage Mother Nature's creatures from prowling around Darrell Janke's home in Norland. One night Mr. Janke left his car windows open and awoke to find clear evidence that a bear had been checking out his car's interior. The critter was apparently attracted by food scraps left by Darrell's young son Mark.

Sympathies to family and friends of the late Mervin Teel who recently died. Mr. Teel was a long-time Norland resident who was very active within the community.

Sympathies also to friends and family of Duncan Valentine, another long time resident of Norland who recently died.

The wife of former Cobocok minister Reverend Cross also died recently. May her loved ones find comfort in their time of sorrow.

On Saturday August 16 an auction will be held at Ward Park in Norland. If you have some items you would like to donate please bring them to the park on the morning of the auction. All proceeds from the auction will go to the Norland recreation committee. As well as being a profitable day it should also prove to be a lot of fun.

The Northern Schools debate rages on. The North Kawartha Times, a Fenelon Falls paper which supports the Save Our Schools Organization is presently circulating a poll dealing with the issue.

On Friday August 15 a teen dance will be held at the Norland Recreation Centre. The dance will be supervised and runs from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m.

Well, that's all for this week. If you have any news you feel is of interest to the general public please call at 454-3707. Bye for now.

Free puppet plays coming

Kinmount Korner by Millie Moss

Some dates to mark on your calendar: Thursday August 21 at 2:30 p.m. Trent's Travelling Troupes will be attending Kinmount Community Hall for the entertainment of anyone who wishes to come out and enjoy two puppet plays "Princess and the Pea" and "Rumpelstiltskin". The program is free and everyone is welcome.

Attention: all members of the Bryant Clan - there will be a family reunion on August 24, to be held at Ward Memorial Park, Norland, Ontario at 10:00 a.m. There will be games for the children, beverages will be supplied and pot luck to be enjoyed. There will be a charge of one dollar per adult over twelve. Please bring your own lawn chairs, plates, cutlery and cups. Get all your families together, come out and enjoy your own day.

Results of St. James card games last week are: mens high - Lyle Anderson, mens low - Connie Williams, ladies high - Ruby Holbrook, ladies low - Sue Wilson, lone hands - Ruby Holbrook.

Vi and Albert Crego left their Kinmount home recently on a trip which took them to Courtland, New York, where they stayed the night. Vi reported the weather was very hot for travelling. They got on the road by 7:30 next morning and arrived at their son's home in Shelton, Connecticut by one p.m. They stayed there for almost three weeks going and seeing different places but was stopped when son Ron's back went out on him which required his staying in bed. Vi and Albert then shopped a lot and later drove to their daughter's home in Kings-ton where they stayed the night arriving back in Kinmount the following day. They were tired but said they'd enjoyed every minute of their trip.

Joe England has been in hospital as has been Harry Platt. Get well soon boys!

Others on the ailing list recently include - Grandmother Hills, Mary Graham and John Pyke. Norland has had a sad week recently. Mrs. Cross, the wife of a former Norland minister died. "Dunc" Valentine and Mervin Teal all died in the same week and in Kinmount, Alice Hyams, mom to our neighbours, Ken and Joan Hyams died in Bobcaygeon on Thursday August 8. Sympathy is extended to all family and friends of loved ones now gone.

Thanks to all who have sent cards or phoned my sister Helen Graham, my mom, Mary Pyke and myself last week following our own loss of a loved daughter and sister, Marie Cerd, who died very suddenly on July 29.

Thanks also to you ladies who called asking why no column last week. I'm afraid it was my own fault this time. With all I had on my mind I completely overlooked the holiday week end and mailed the column as usual on Saturday morning which means because the mail goes to Lindsay before being returned to Haliburton it would not arrive at the Echo office in time for printing. Maybe as you suggested, Mrs. Cook, the editor will maybe include it next week.

If you received the thought provoking editorial from Ernie Hills of the North Kawartha Times last week, I hope you saw fit to fill in the poll. Our northern schools include Burnt River, Cobocok, Kinmount, Norland and Kirkfield and should not be closed. It, the school's closing, could hurt not only the children but affect our very way of life. Let's stay together on this one. Save Our Schools.

The W.I. Ladies in Norland are busy each Tuesday and Saturday these weeks at their Opportunity Shop which started out this year at the old Chymoweth house on Highway 35 in Norland and is now located across the road in the corner building which has been a bait shop, a pizza place, you name it and now if you are penny wise you will make the "Op Shop" one of your stops to check out the many items the ladies have at very reasonable prices.

Elizabeth Fryer visited Mary Louise Pyke last week.

Jesse and Hilda Buxcey are presently enjoying the company of a nephew from England.

Betty and John Lonsdale have their son Bill, visiting with them from Toronto.

Elizabeth Fryer took her daughter Ann and Derek Spencer out to a seafood dinner to celebrate Ann's birthday on July 26. It's a little late Ann but best wishes to you.

Coming up at the Kinmount Fairgrounds on Saturday August 9 is the Galway/Cavendish eighth annual Festival/86. Come early, stay late, meet your neighbours. All proceeds are donated to recreation facilities. From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Events include an auction sale at the Fairgrounds arena and the sixth annual Galway-Cavendish horseshoe tournament. There will be a bake table, snack bar, white elephant table, pony rides, T-Shirts, children's games, souvenirs, furniture, antiques, country variety raffle and much, much more. From 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. there will be a dance - door and spot prizes. At 11:30 p.m. a lottery draw with a first prize of $1000 cash. Have you bought your lottery ticket yet? Music by Cathy Brown and Silver Creek.

Results of St. Patrick's card party Tuesday July 29 are mens high: Charlie Molyneux, mens low: Maggie Kylie, ladies high: Clara Watson, ladies low: Lil Porter, lone hands: Martha Mansfield.

From Sunday until Thursday Vic Cooke enjoyed travelling with her son Fred, his wife Donna and their son Jason Cooke, visiting the Wisers Brewery in Corbeville, Kingston, Ganonoque, winding up in Toronto. The trip was in celebration of Vi's recent birthday and the wedding anniversary of her children.

Harry Platt had to be taken to Ross Memorial Hospital last week.

Retirement gift discussed

Coboconk news by Sheila Lake

A meeting was held in the Anglican Parish hall on July 30 to organize a retirement gift for Dr. R.E. Jamieson. Several points were discussed. Mr. Heffer was a big help, being a personal friend of Dr. Jamieson. Chairperson for each area were decided upon with Burnt River being looked after by Gladys Watson. Bev Graham will be in charge of Norland. Annie Robertson has charge of Coboconk; Mary Lunas is responsible for Kirkfield and Fern Scarlett for Kinnmount.

As a result of that meeting and one held on Wednesday night a Bursary Fund will be set up. This will be an honorarium for Dr. R.E. Jamieson. Donations to the Bursary will be received during the week of August 18 to 23 by canvassers in the surrounding area. Should you not be canvassed and wish to contribute please forward your donation to Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Coboconk or Lindsay or any of the following township offices: Bexley, Laxton or Somerville. The Bursary will be awarded by Fenelon Falls Secondary School, who will issue official income tax receipts. An award in Science or Medicine would be presented annually to a student living in the area Dr. Jamieson has served.

A leaf from the family tree has departed this life. Duncan Valentine, who has been living at Sault Ste. Marie, and is a cousin of my mothers, passed away the past week.

Sympathy to the late Mervin Teel's family in his sudden death on Monday.

Sympathy too to the Rev. B.H. Cross family in the loss of his wife Irene. The Cross's were pastors at Faith Tabernacle here for about eight years and Irene was a super lady. May God be your comfort at this time.

The Knox United Church celebrated their 75th anniversary. Rev. Clifford Waite of Oakwood United Church as guest speaker.

Mrs. Ron Nesbitt of St. Thomas has been holidaying with her mother-in-law Mrs. Frances Nesbitt. Winners in the Coboconk

Seniors card games held at Coby Community Hall on August 5 are as follows - Euchre - Judy McDonald 80 and Greta Reeds 78. Most lone hands - Judy McDonald 5 - consolation - Thelma Adams 50. Gents - Charles Taylor 78, and Tom Bowins 73. Most lone hands - Charles Taylor 4. Consolation - Ada Barry 41. Bridge - Peggy Saunders 5350 and Joyce Harbottle 4660. Consolation - Connie Wynell - 1070.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rochio are home after a three week holiday and family reunion with John's family at Edson, Alberta. Their son and his wife Ron and Maureen Rochio of Barrie accompanied John and Rose.

Mrs. Ada Fisher of Lindsay was a visitor at our house on Thursday.

Rev. and Mrs. Donald Hill of Toronto were visitors of our family and Mrs. Marles on Monday evening.

Charlie Routley is still far from well and Mary Limrich has had another setback. Both are in Lindsay Hospital.

The annual Lion's Carnival is now history and except for the Friday night rain shower, all went well. Lovely summer weather drew out super crowds and the Lions were well pleased with all the support.

Frank and Mary Spry held the Jackson Family reunion last week end with almost seventy of the Jackson clan in attendance. Again, ideal weather made it all ideal.

Charlie Routley is in Ross Memorial Hospital with heart problems, as is Norval Watson. Get well wishes to both you fellows.

Evelyn (Evie) Marles of Toronto spent last week with her grandma Annie Marles. On Thursday Ada Fisher came from Lindsay to spend the day with her mother and Evie went to Lindsay to spend a day with her aunt Ada Fisher. While here on Thursday, Ada, Evie and Grandma visited Mr. and Mrs. Rod Harrison and family at Norland and visited yours truly.

Last Sunday, a dear aunt Mrs. Ada Irwin (nee Brohm) died suddenly while visiting her daughter Christine. Mr. and Mrs. Vanderburg at Little Britain. The youngest daughter of the late Ed Brohm, five of her family are left. The funeral was from the Mackie Funeral home with interment at Little Britain cemetery. Her body rested at the funeral home here for visitation on Monday for family here.

Sunday August 9 is the Faith Tabernacle Sunday School picnic. Go to Balsam Lake Provincial Park at 1:30 if you are associated with Faith Tabernacle Sunday School.

I attended the Avon Meeting at the park in Haliburton on Monday and it was a delightful change to meet in the lovely park by the water. I think more group meetings should be held in the great outdoors!

Jack Bradmore of Little Britain, his daughter, Mrs. Orma Graham of Lindsay and her daughter, Mrs. Chris Switzer and daughter of Lindsay all visited with Mrs. Ruth Ruttler and Mrs. Cora Lake last Wednesday.

Mrs. Carmen Robinson is home after a month long visit with her daughter Rebecca Brown and Rebecca's policeman husband and their little boy, at Minake.

Mrs. Ruth Hall and Cindy McCaul of Lindsay visited with Sam Routley last week. Howard and Karen Hall and Samantha of Scarborough also visited Sam.

Mrs. Fanny Richman is quite well and still at Soldiers Memorial Hospital at Orillia. Her husband Sanford visits every week and finds it very lonesome at home alone without her.

Frances Farrow and family have got all moved to the white Peel house on Albert Street.

Gary Callan and family have moved to the house vacated by the Mike Jones family, who have moved to Haliburton.

I hope you have a good week and a super long holiday weekend.

Sisson reunion a day full of fun and food

West Guilford

by Eleanor Cooper

Many Sisson families and relatives attended the Sisson reunion on Saturday and entered into the fun of volleyball, baseball, water-balloon fights, and shave-the-shaving-cream off the balloon games. The day ended with the barbecue supper.

On Sunday a smaller gathering appeared to sign the guest book, presided over by Steve Sisson of Lindsay who was present with his wife, Alayne and children, Alan and Allana. Some of those who signed in were Juanita Hougestol of Metiskow, Alberta; Jennifer and Doug Wilson, Verne and Doreen Sisson, Carl and Eva Sisson, Dawson and Doris Sisson of Dauphin, Manitoba, and Elaine, Justin, and Jordan Sisson of Chetwynd, B.C. The Moffat family, Dalton, Hannah and Kelvin of Paisley were also present. The extensive family tree was laid out like a long scroll on a table for all to peruse at leisure. Mrs. Phrona Sisson presided most capably in the kitchen for the serving of the scrumptious pot-luck supper.

Since I had no news ready for last week, there are a couple of items to mention rather belatedly, one of which is Jack Henderson's 90th birthday which was celebrated at the head of Pine Lake. The families of Rod, Garth, Brian and Dick Henderson were present. Other guests included Alma Morrison, Elva Cooper, and Ann and Alex Pollen.

Mrs. Stan Cooper has just had the pleasure of a visit from Duncan and Evelyn Bradley of Thunder Bay, and their daughter Lynne Domville and her sons Matthew and Marc of Montreal.

Beth Cooper was home for a few days; she has just

Carrots - here is a vegetable that is available all year round but they are 'garden fresh' at this time of year. To me, there is nothing tastier than a carrot right from the ground (remove dirt before eating!). I grew up with my Dad telling me that carrots were good for my eyes. When I asked why, he would reply: "Did you ever see a rabbit that had to wear glasses?"

MARINATED CARROTS

This recipe came from Agnes Orr and is a favourite at our church potluck dinners.

5 cups sliced carrots (boil 10 minutes and cool)

1 large onion, sliced

1 green pepper, sliced

MARINATE:

1 10 oz. can tomato soup

1/2 cup oil

1/2 cup sugar

3/4 cup vinegar

1 tsp. salt

1/2 tsp. pepper

1 tsp. prepared mustard

Mix marinade together. Add to carrots; onion and green pepper. Refrigerate 24 hours before serving.

SUNSHINE CARROTS

5 medium carrots

1 tbsp. sugar

1 tsp. cornstarch

1/4 tsp. ground ginger

1/4 tsp. salt

1/4 cup orange juice

2 tbsp. butter

Cut carrots on the bias in 1-inch chunks. Cook, covered, in boiling salted water till just tender, about 20 minutes, drain. In a small saucepan mix sugar, cornstarch, ginger and salt. Add juice, cook and stir until thick and bubbly. Boil one minute. Stir in butter. Toss with carrots. Serves 4.

GOLDEN CARROT BAKE

3 cups shredded carrot

2 1/2 cup long grain rice

by Nada Vaughan

1/2 tsp. salt
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup milk
2 beaten eggs
2 tbsp. chopped onion
Pepper to taste

In a saucepan combine carrot, rice, salt and 1 1/2 cups water. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 25 minutes. Stir in 1 1/2 cups of the cheese, milk, eggs, onion and pepper. Turn into casserole dish. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Top with remaining cheddar. Return to oven until cheese is melted. Serves 6.

CARROT CAKE

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup oil
3 eggs
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. baking soda
1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
1 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
2 cups finely grated raw carrots

Beat together sugar and oil. Add eggs, one at a time. Add salt, cinnamon, baking soda and powder and flour. Fold in carrots. Bake at 300 degrees for 35 - 40 minutes in a 9 x 9 pan.

CREAM CHEESE FROSTING

4 oz. cream cheese (small pkg.)
1 1/2 cups icing sugar
1/4 cup soft butter
2 tsp. vanilla
Beat together and spread on cooled carrot cake. Top with 1/2 cup chopped walnuts.

Mr. Grouch an inspiration Haliburton Fair this week

Wilberforce news by Winnie Schofield

Summer carnivals and fairs are organized as attractions for tourists. They also provide entertainment for local people. The fun parade of the Haliburton Rotary Carnival was exceptionally noteworthy this year with a host of bright new ideas for their floats. Mr. Grouch of Woodstock was the inspiration behind the emphasis on the theme "Haliburton is beautiful". An enthusiastic crowd packed the parade route and cheered on the bands, the clowns and the scores of young people taking part in the program. Making a perfect evening was the absence of rain and a cool, pleasant temperature.

The third annual Agricultural Fair held in Wilberforce was a very successful event. After this record crowd in attendance showing a definite increase in interest by the public, the future of the Fair looks bright.

Saturday began with heavy clouds that vanished by noon and sunshine prevailed for the rest of the day.

Many fine heavy horses and colts were on hand for judging. Riding horses provided competition for some young riders. To be seen were scores of dainty goats and fluffy rabbits. A parcel of ducks created a stir with their races. There was a frog jumping contest and of course that favourite, the dog show. From a tiny dog that would fit into your hand to those the size of a small pony, they all had their special charm. Many a household pet could be seen later proudly wearing bright winner's ribbons attached to a collar.

In the exhibit hall local talent was evident in the numerous displays of needlework, knitting, quilts, etc. and in the baking section and preserving along with fine arrangements of flowers and the splendid production of vegetables. Seniors were represented with a display of their work and the school children of the area might well be proud of their drawings, wood carvings and other fine crafts. Beauty Queen chosen was Charlene Stoughton who was kept busy throughout the day distributing ribbons to lucky winners in the horse circle. Karen Chatterton of Harcourt and Alma Hanon of Wilberforce were Charlene's lovely attendants.

The horse draw was watched by a great crowd and the Rhythm Cloggers of Ontario were a popular feature of the day. In the evening a good crowd attended the dance held in the Arena where the Rhythm Cloggers were part of the evening program which featured "Just Plain Country".

Bern and Joyce Waterton are spending the summer at Bon Echo Provincial Park at Cloyne, Ontario, where Bern is acting as Chaplain. They paid a visit to Mrs. Velva Dean at the Anglican Rectory last Tuesday where "Open House" was held in the evening. A good number of friends dropped in to see Bern and Joyce and to hear of the work they are doing at the park. Bern is responsible for organizing a Sunday service which is for all denominations so is an Ecumenical service. Two days a week a children's day camp is held, where the children do crafts, have a sing-a-long and hear Bible stories. Bern has one more year of training to take at the Church Army in Toronto. We wish him success and a happy future for him and Joyce. This item of news was from Sylvia Cameron. On Sunday August 17 the South Wilberforce Memorial Service will be held at the Wilberforce United Church at 11:30 a.m. Maurice Bradley will conduct the service assisted by other Church leaders.

Here's more news about those unwelcome visitors the ear wigs. They have been seen to gather at the base of rose and dahlia blooms and this destroys the flower. A reader in Lindsay says that she has found the use of Black Flag, a house and garden killer, an effective way to get rid of these pests.

Bridge games are being held every Tuesday at 7:30 at the Tory Hill Recreation Centre.

Beef dinner a success

Carnarvon

Mr. and Mrs. Garth Windsor, formerly of Hornby, have moved into the Maurice Windsor home now that Garth has retired from the railroad. We welcome them to the village and our very best wishes for a happy retirement.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Russell and children of Bridgenorth spent part of last week at Halls Lake with his grandmother, Mrs. Edith Russell.

The community extends sympathy to Mrs. Joyce McKee and family of Dorset, whose husband Leon died last week. Leon will be greatly missed in this village. He was a diligent worker for the church and Lions Club and helped with the building of the Dorset Dialysis Camp. He was employed at the Frost Centre until retirement and was well known to many in our area.

This week saw the forty first anniversary of the dropping of the A-bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Many services were held all over the world to commemorate the loss of Japanese life and the aftermath of these terrible bombs. I only hope the banner wavers and the placard carriers gave a silent prayer to the many American boys who lost their lives in Pearl Harbour, Letye, Two Jima and the Philippines. A decision had to be made. Thank God for men like Harry S. Truman who made that decision. I am not an advocate of nuclear war or war of any kind. I know. I am a war veteran.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Watson and son Andrew of Bridgenorth spent the weekend with the Jack Barnharts.

Mrs. Ken Farrell and three daughters of Orillia spent last week with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Bill O'Reilly. The whole family spent the weekend in Bancroft where they helped Bill and Barb celebrate their wedding anniversary. Congratulations and many more years of happiness.

Staying for a month with grandparents Bill and Alice Chambers are Scott and Tara Chambers, children of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Chambers of London, Ontario, and arriving for two weeks are Mrs. Alison Corcoran and children Nichols and Ashley of Bedford, Quebec. Congratulations to Branch 129 of the Canadian Legion of their successful Bluegrass Festival. A lot of planning and hard work was put into the venture. Many thanks to president Joan Irish and her co-workers.

A vote of thanks to all those hard working people who helped make our annual summer roast beef dinner such a success. All three sittings were sold out ahead of time.

Visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Bill McKay on the weekend were Jan's brother Mr. Ross Darling and sister Mrs. Rosemary Pigat and their neighbour, all of Toronto.

Household Hint: Mildew builds up quickly in basements or closets where moisture gets trapped. A dehumidifier helps; it's also a good idea to put a pan filled with moisture absorber such as silica gel of calcium chloride in the mildew prone area. Wipe off existing mildew with rubbing alcohol.

The Lost Patrol of Troop 497 visited the Dixie Lee Restaurant during their trip to Canada. Alec MacKay, David Van der Vassen, Chris Luciano, Ernie Bandelin, Eldon Rone, Sammy Mohr and Ramon Palmer said they liked the area. The boys are from the United States. We enjoyed talking to them and hope to see them again next year.

There will be a dance with D.J. Jeff Bunn for the teens from grade 7 to 10 at the Minden Community Centre on Friday August 22 from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

Sand and Water play will be featured at Minden's CHACE Place on Wednesday August 20.

Don't forget our Haliburton County Fair on August 15, 16 and 17. It will include horse pulls, equestrian competitions, an amateur contest, livestock show, pioneer exhibit and the midway.

Sincere sympathy to the family and friends of Moses Lichty.

Recipe for this week: Fritter Batter - 1 1/2 cups flour, 2 tsp. baking powder, 3/4 tsp. salt, pepper, 3/4 cup milk, 2 eggs and 1 tbsp. sugar. Mix all ingredients together and beat until smooth. Enough for two dozen fritters.

Don't forget the movies at the Library/Cultural Centre for the children on Thursday evenings from 7:15 to 8:15.

Accident victim home after hospital stay

Dorset news
by Phyllis Briscoe

Early in July there seemed to be a very few humming birds coming to the feeders. I began to think that they disliked the ambrosia that I was putting out for them. However, they are here in full force now and it keeps one busy filling the feeders. I guess they were getting plenty of nectar from the flowers at feeding stations located elsewhere.

Welcome home to Rick Morris after his long stay in the hospital. Rick is still having to go into hospital three times a week for therapy so is kept busy.

We sent best wishes for a speedy recovery to Dot Lock who is a patient in Barrie Hospital where she underwent Orthopedic Surgery. We understand that she is progressing nicely.

A traffic policeman would be kept busy on the lake these days as the boats are out by the hundreds.

Did you know that progress is just man's ability to complicate simplicity?

I have been told that the shortage of Humming birds earlier on was due to the fact they were nesting. And there are a lot of little ones among those that have come back.

Our best wishes for better health go to Norman MacKay who was admitted to Huntsville Hospital. We hope he will soon be back home and feeling fine.

Angela McKay of Hamilton became ill while visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Hazel Sears, and had to be taken to Huntsville Hospital. Hazel reports that Angela is recovering nicely and may be home by the time you read this. We send our best wishes for a speedy return to good health.

Congratulations to Anne and Ruby Goosen who became the proud parents of a baby boy on Tuesday July 29 at Huntsville Hospital. The baby weighed 8 lbs. 10 ozs. and is a new grandson for Bill and Barb Clark.

H.H. To clean oven racks easily, put them in a plastic bag with two paper towels soaked in ammonia. Tie tightly and leave for a few hours, preferably in the sun. They will wash off cleanly.

These baton twirlers were a welcomed sight at the Rotary parade passing through Haliburton streets last Wednesday. The Haliburton and Minden youngsters have recently joined forces.

Lake Miskwabi cottagers get together

Fleming spoke of MNR's Fisheries Management plans and of the new fishing license of $10 for people aged 18-64 effective January 1, 1987. It is planned that increased revenue will assist in implementing the fisheries plan. Fleming advised of area stocking plans and that MNR were represented on the Haliburton Highlands Water Management Advisory Committee. In this way they would work with the Committee to alleviate the effects of water level fluctuations and drawdown on lake trout spawn.

Strickland added some supplementary data regarding the status of the Lake Miskwabi North Shore development and the process any proposal must go through and commented on MNR's excellent fisheries management plan. Interested people were encouraged to pick up a copy at MNR, Minden office. The Association has already responded on behalf of the four lakes in the area and is looking for improved fish stocking for Lake Wenona.

The speakers were thanked for their fine presentations and presented with a "goodie box" on behalf of the Association. The group were reminded of the Third Annual Junior Fishing Championship on August 24, 1986. Larry Holden, Director of the Association came forward and presented Monica and Jerry Strickland with a plaque.

Legion urges ad caution

By Edwin K. Scott

Pearl and Earl Travis of Highland Grove celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary on August 2 by treating their family and friends to a tasty roast beef dinner, prepared by the Ladies' Auxiliary, at Branch 624. The wedding cake, made by Earl and decorated by Rick Huffman, was superb! After dinner the evening was spent dancing and listening to the lively music of Joe Nicholson. We wish these comrades many more happy anniversaries.

Olive Atkinson is home again after a visit to Civic Hospital in Peterborough. We hope she will soon be feeling better.

The following is from P.R.O. Don Crawford, of Perth Legion Branch 244 -- "It has again been brought to our attention that publications called Canadian Federation of Veterans'

News, Veteran's Advocate and Veterans' Forum from time to time canvass for advertising throughout the Province of Ontario. To the best of our knowledge none of these publications have any connection directly or indirectly with veterans' organizations nor individual veterans."

"Regrettably the solicitations are generally carried out during the Remembrance and Poppy period when the public is most receptive and sympathetic to veterans."

"The Royal Canadian Legion is the only nationwide organization representing veterans with the publication LEGION Magazine."

"If businesses or individuals in this area are approached to purchase advertising in the three publications mentioned at the introduction of this announcement, it might be prudent to ask for identification."

The first annual Haliburton Legion Bluegrass Festival is over. After a year of intense planning and leg work, a heartfelt thank you goes out to many people for a very successful Festival. For their unstinting encouragement and support, Clerk-treasurer Wayne Woods, Reeve Murray Fearrey and the men who prepared the site in Glebe Park. To Museum curator, Ross Carver and his staff. To local business people who showed their support in so many ways. To Backwoods Marina and Kennedy Surplus and many others who donated equipment such as ATVs, two-way radios and walkie talkies. To the Legion Ladies Auxiliary for their home baking, time and efforts. To Wayne Wood of Ashburnham Meat Market. To over 130 volunteers who cheerfully donated their time, vehicles and unlimited energy to ensure a successful weekend, a sincere thank you. Finally to all the citizens of Haliburton County, who came out to enjoy the music and support this first venture. Thank you. Joan Irish, Pres. 27-P-13

The family of Andrea Johnson wish to thank the many people whose prayers and loving concern gave us strength during Andi's recent illness. Your cards, gifts, phone calls, visits, brightened her hospital stay. May God bless you and keep you. 28-P-13
